THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES
BY Sally Saver

Soup Revival Sweeps Nation

Bring out the old family tureen, and try serving the soup course right at the table. The soup stays hotter, and it saves the fuss and bother of hopping up and down between courses changing the service.

Lately the whole country's come out strong for soup—real, old-fashioned, home-style soup. The kind your grandmother used to cook in a big, three-legged, iron kettle on top of her wood stove. Remember, way back in your rooster days, when you were a little fellow, you used to sit on the edge of the bed, waiting for the smell of a kettleful of beans cooking away with a hunk of ham. Or the heady fragrance of vegetables fresh from your own garden, plucked, and seasoned with herbs and spices, all simmering away on the back of the stove. These were soups! The kind with flavor, and heart. The kind that made you feel that you could sink your teeth into it.

Well, they disappeared after a while. A new generation came along. A generation in a hurry. There wasn't time any more for all that patient plucking, and cleaning, and stirring and tasting. So the old soup kettle was relegated to the attic. And with it went all those good old-fashioned, country kitchen soups. Soon soup just about disappeared from our everyday menus. Oh, we had it on state occasions, and sometimes mother would cook up a thick vegetable potage for Saturday night supper. But it wasn't like soup made from your own garden-fresh vegetables. So most of the time we managed without it. But once more soup is back on American tables, and don't the men folks love it!

The puppy shows judgment, picking on an opponent as soft as its own fur. For the tassel is made of downy, fluffy "Cellulose." Can you picture the softness this material would give a toilet tissue? There is one made this way—Northern Tissue—and it is the only nationally advertised tissue made of pure Cellulose. Be sure to ask your dealer for it. Or if you should want a tissue still lower-priced, ask for Gauze—it's lighter and cream-colored.

Collegiate Hitch-Hikers' Society Is Advocated by Athens Students

ATHENS, Ga., May 19.—(AP)—The Georgia Arch, University of Georgia student humor magazine, gravely undertook sponsorship of an American Association of Collegiate Hitch-hikers today.

The editors of the Arch expressed opinion that tweed-wearing intellectuals of today have something to offer in exchange for a lift—and suggested a campaign to acquaint auto drivers with the advantages of picking up wandering collegians. The magazine suggested that members of the association should equip themselves to "converse on any subject and assist in emergencies."

The Arch estimated that as many as 60 per cent of college men depend partly or in whole on "thumbing" transportation when they travel.

The association would seek amendment of anti-hitch-hiking laws.

The magazine described hitch-hiking as one of the finest of instructional mediums, and added, "It affords one of the best sociological courses one could wish."

Members of the association would be pledged to "stay on well-traveled thoroughfares... always keep clean and neat... keep a pleasant smile... entertain the persons who afford the lifts... and be prepared to assist or take command in emergencies."

ZEPHRINES:

1 pint flour.
1 small tablespoon butter.
A pinch of salt.
Water.

Mix the sifted flour with the butter, add salt and enough water to make a moderately stiff dough.

Knead well, roll very thin (not thicker than a sheet of paper). Prick the dough all over with the points of a fork, and cut into squares. Bake quickly in a moderately hot oven.

Crisp and light, the zephyrines are ready to serve.
(Next Friday, Sally Lunn sweetened bread.)

Native of Africa Amazed at Court

Stanley E. Morris, assistant native commissioner of Bulawayo, in Southern Rhodesia, Africa, visited Atlanta's police court yesterday. He was amazed at the speed with which cases are tried. He said:

"The majority of our drunkenness cases are brought about by the natives drinking kaffir beer, another kind of homebrew."

He said that in Bulawayo men are appointed to the judgeships by the government. We work for several years, pass all bar examinations, then wait for somebody at the head of the list to die or retire," he explained. "Then we step in at the bottom and work up." His visit here is part of a nation-wide tour.

U. S. FOREIGN POLICY ASSAILED BY NAZIS

Philer Denounces Johnson's 'Hymn of Hate.'

BERLIN, May 19.—(P)—The Hamburger Fremdenblatt today editorially attacked the United States' foreign policy under a streamer which said "The U. S. A. Is Disturbing International Relations."

"The meddling of the higher American government heads in the process of European developments repeatedly has given reason for serious public discussion in Germany," the newspaper said. It ridiculed as "unwarranted" the recent speech of United States Secretary of War, Woodring, who told dictator-controlled nations that democracies might some day get enough of their provocations and resort to war.

The newspaper likewise assailed as a "hymn of hate, openly aimed at the Reich," the speech read at Philadelphia Tuesday night in which Assistant Secretary of War Johnson declared "some international aggressors will may be stretching out their covetous hands toward the Americans."

Colonel Chester A. Byars, chairman of the tri-county highway steering committee, told the commissioners all but 14 property owners already had signed easements for rights-of-way.

BODY OF SALESMAN FOUND IN OCMULGEE

MACON, Ga., May 19.—(P)—A man's body, found half submerged in the Ocmulgee river, near Central Park last night, was identified today as that of E. R. Zachry, Macon salesman.

A coroner's jury decided that "in our opinion the deceased came to his death by drowning in the Ocmulgee river, the circumstances not being disclosed to this jury." Zachary had been missing two weeks.

FLORIDIANS ADVANCED FOR NEW JUDGESHIP

They are Louie W. Strum, Jacksonville, judge of the southern district of Florida, and James W. Morris, Tampa, assistant attorney general of the United States. He indicated no preference between the two.

ALIEN LIMITATION
URGED BY RIVERS*Americans Must Have Work
Before Foreigners, He Tells Ginners.

MACON, Ga., May 19.—(AP)—Georgia cotton ginners here today applauded the suggestion of Governor Rivers that alien farmers be deported and the immigration quotas be limited until Americans are employed.

The chief executive drew a disparaging comparison between southern and northern labor, declaring Georgia's homogeneous labor is superior to the foreign element in the north and east.

Advantages and disadvantages facing Georgia industrialism, largely centered around cotton, formed the basis of the address in the Macon auditorium.

Governor Rivers was introduced by Macon's Mayor Charles Bowden shortly after the ginners' association had re-elected its entire slate of officers.

Those re-elected are W. H. Lovett, Dublin president, for the third term; A. S. Mills, Sylva, vice president, for a sixth term; G. S. Phillips, Harlem, vice president, for a third term; D. C. Shaw, Carversville, vice president, for a third term, and F. N. Watkins, Dublin, secretary, for an eighth term.

President Lovett urged ginners to guard against jeopardizing the growers' markets by permitting wet, badly-ginned or false-packed cotton to be shipped.

"We all know foreign countries are now producing about 60 per cent of the world's cotton," he said, "but there is still a greater demand for American staple because of its quality. However, it is up to us as ginners to keep this record good and even better it by eliminating the complaints I have mentioned, and by keeping pace with improved equipment as it is presented and proved to us."

Lovett reminded members of the association they also would find increased responsibility in operation of new farm act.

"Contrary to the opinion of some," he said, "I think that on the ginner will be placed the burden of keeping all the records relating to the production and ginning of cotton under this new act." Lovett urged closer co-operation among the ginners, and warned petty differences between competitors often resulted in all parties concerned going through the season with a loss.

The ginners were welcomed to Macon by W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph.

W. M. Hutchinson, of Atlanta, secretary of the Cottonseed Crushers of Georgia, spoke during the morning program on the relation of the ginner to the oil mill. Other speakers on the afternoon program included G. B. Lester, president of the National Cotton Ginners' Association, and Charles A. Bennett, chief of the Federal Ginning Laboratory at Stoneville, Miss.

SHIFTS TO OREGON*CIO Strength, Administration Interference Again Factors in Primary.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—Political attention has shifted from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboard, where Oregon's Democrats will decide tomorrow a party contest that has many of the same characteristics, if not the 1940 importance, that attached to Pennsylvania's free-for-all last Tuesday.

The AFL-CIO battle has been waged more hotly all up and down the Pacific coast than elsewhere in the nation since the John L. Lewis drive to organize "little steel." It is reflected in the fight of Oregon's Democratic Governor, Charles H. Martin, for renomination against Henry L. Hess. The latter is supported by Secretary Ickes, thus giving the Oregon fight little less of an administration intervention flavor than was evident in Pennsylvania.

Martin has been critical of many New Deal policies, snapped at the President's labor secretary, Miss Perkins, and made his campaign against "labor racketeers," but proclaimed, as did all Democratic factions in Pennsylvania, his loyalty to the President. His attack on Hess has been that his opponent watch for in the Oregon returns particularly is any sign of the anti-CIO wave that, with other factors, served to defeat in Pennsylvania the boldest bid the Lewis camp has yet made for direct political power.

NEW DEAL IS ISSUE IN PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—(AP) Manifest concern in Pennsylvania's primary election developments by the high commands of both major parties marked the state tonight as a prospective major battleground in November with the New Deal a clear-cut issue.

President Roosevelt, James A. Farley, democratic national chairman, and John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, were quick to note the outcome of Tuesday's record-breaking vote.

For Governor (8,039 of 8,075 districts): Charles A. Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, endorsed by the state committee, 585,760.

Lieutenant Governor Thomas Kennedy, supported by CIO leader John L. Lewis, Senator Joseph Guffey, and recommended by Farley, 519,806.

Charles J. Margiotti, former state attorney general, dismissed by Governor Earle, 171,564.

For United States senator (8,023 districts): Governor Earle, state committee candidate recommended by Farley, 768,602.

S. Davis Wilson, mayor of Philadelphia, Guffey-Lewis candidate, 329,975.

Republican.
For Governor (8,048 districts): Judge Arthur H. James, of state superior court, backed by most Republican organization leaders, 832,563.

Gifford Pinchot, twice governor, 441,104.

For United States senator (7,979 districts): Senator James J. Davis, 792,214.

G. Mason Owlett, national committeeman and state senator, 440,393.

FOREIGN OIL COMPANIES DENY MEXICAN CHARGE
MEXICO CITY, May 19.—(AP)—Representatives of foreign oil companies tonight sent a joint telegram to President Cardenas denying the companies recently had followed a policy tending to overthrow the Mexican government.

In public statements Cardenas has asserted some of the foreign oil interests whose properties were expropriated March 18 had been "ineffectively trying to bring about a revolution" to favor "their expansion policy."

TALMADGE OPENS SENATE CAMPAIGN

Free Land for Unemployed
Presented as Chief Plank for Campaign.

couraged several times from the crowd, by men who calling "You tell 'em Gene," and "That's right, Gene."

"Gene, we've still got the three-cent stamp," said one.

"That's right, but I haven't forgotten the two-cent stamp," Talmadge replied. "Senator Russell needs help on that, too."

Introduced by Houston.
Speaking at the Buford Spring school, two miles from Buford, Talmadge was introduced by John Houston, Lawrenceville lawyer.

Before Talmadge arrived, H. C. Smith, Lawrenceville merchant and farmer, took up a collection from the assembled farmers and workers with which to help pay Talmadge's entrance fee as a gift from Gwinnett county. The amount of the collection was not announced, but Smith said residents promised enough money to complete the sum.

The former Governor called his opponent by name once. The remainder of the time he referred to George as "the senior senator."

"We don't need to send men back (to congress) year after year to represent big corporations," he declared. "They (the corporations) are able to take care of themselves."

Would Aid Jute Fight.
Talmadge said the farmers needed a senator in Washington who would help Senator Russell get a tariff on jute, which competes with cotton.

"I give Russell credit for introducing the jute bill," he said. "I don't think the senior senator has been very active in helping him."

"I want to help Senator Russell get this bill passed," he asserted. Advocating expansion of CCC camps, Talmadge said they should be made into model institutions for teaching young men trades, such as carpentry, brick masonry, electricity and also to teach them to keep their bodies healthy. Military training should be included, he asserted.

The ex-Governor said a veteran at the CCC camp of war veterans at McRae, Talmadge's hometown, told him it cost the government about $100 a month to keep men in the camps.

Would Satisfy Veterans.
"He said the veterans would be better satisfied if they were given their $30 a month and allowed to stay at home," Talmadge declared.

But he said he thought the camps were good for young men if perfected.

"On every farm, carpentry, masonry, knowledge of electricity, etc., are as necessary as knowing how to fix a scooter to a plow stock," he declared.

"That's the doctrine I want to talk on the senate floor, that I want to tell to the nation."

Talmadge said honest people want to work and when given chance to do honest work they will advance themselves.

Would Perfect CCC Camps.
"They want to get off relief. They want an opportunity to earn a living. They want to stand on their own feet," he asserted.

Talmadge said "it would be spending money right" to perfect the CCC camps and open them to every boy in America.

Farmers buy goods on which tariff is paid but they sell on a free, world market, he said. He advocated high tariffs to protect products which are produced by Americans.

"The United States is already giving away free land and putting people back on the farms, but do you know where?" he asked. "In Alaska! Do you know where Alaska is? Well, it's up there where they only have one day and one night a year."

"We should farm America first," he declared, explaining his plan for federal purchase of small farms for all unemployed.

Attacks Wallace.
"I want to go to the senate to give every man and woman in America a chance," the former Governor said. "Washington can't fight a man advocating such a doctrine."

"You can't bring back an abundant life with scarcity," he said. "The only man I know who has too much to eat and too much to wear is Secretary of Agriculture Wallace."

Talmadge said the reason farmers voted for the cotton control act was because they were afraid they would not get last year's checks for adjustments.

"Many of you haven't gotten those checks yet, but you will, because the campaign is now on," he said.

He asked the crowd of farmers how many of them had received their checks thus far.

Many shouted they had not received checks, and some declared "we didn't vote for cotton control."

Pointing to the fact that it is now harvesting season in Brazil and Argentina, Talmadge said the farmers in those countries are preparing to raise bigger crops because production is being limited in the United States.

Cites Low Prices.
"Whenever the government touches any product, its price goes down," he asserted.

Talmadge said this country now has the cheapest cotton in history. "Cotton is selling for 8 or 9 cents a pound and considering the devalued dollar, it is the cheapest in the history of the world," he said.

"I am cutting my wheat down in Telfair county and I went out

Treaty Impasse of France, Italy Tangles Accords of Chamberlain

Mussolini Demands Closing of Border to Spain, Yet Wants
To Continue His Aid to Insurgents, Pertinax Says; British Minister Holds Key.

tations were in full swing two months ago, Chamberlain did not doubt in the least that Franco was about to achieve complete victory and that the civil war was drawing near an end. For that reason, Chamberlain was not content to ask that Mussolini should favor the British plan for withdrawal of foreign volunteers and war material, but insisted that an additional guarantee should be made available—that is, Italian troops would have to leave Spanish territory once the Barcelona government had succumbed.

Now a change in the whole situation can be perceived. The British charge d'affaires in Barcelona reports to London that the struggle may go on for another 12 months. However, Mussolini does not seem prone to fulfill guarantee No. 1. He is more likely to select to abide by guarantee No. 2, which he interprets as an assurance that Britain will no longer object to the presence of Italian divisions in the insurgent camp as long as the so-called Communists have not been routed.

It can be seen already that, upon that tolerance shown him by Britain, he endeavors to build a privilege which he urges France formally to endorse. The French cabinet is most unwilling to comply with his demand. Danubian Europe may at any moment give rise to an international conflict.

In the present circumstances it would be unsafe to allow Mussolini a free hand to build up a unified Spanish government, which, to see what I could get for it. They offered me only 80 cents a bushel. Corn is selling for 60 cents a bushel and turpentine is bringing only 26 cents a gallon, the lowest prices in history.

"I saw many signs of improvement around me as I drove up here this afternoon. New homes and material improvements. Why are times so hard?" he asked. Then he charged hard times to the New Deal administration and its control of production.

"They (the New Dealers) have spent 30 billion dollars in the last four years but unemployment now is at its highest peak," he declared.

Hits Tariff Agreement.
"Washington says it is trying to do something for the 'forgotten man' but they can't do it by destroying something," said the senatorial candidate.

Talmadge asserted he wanted to "help the forgotten man" and to help the people of Georgia to stand on their own feet.

Recalling that Buford is a town where shoes are manufactured, Talmadge asserted "Washington recently made an agreement with Czechoslovakia to let its shoes come into America duty free," and added these shoes are produced with labor paid $7.50 a week.

He also advised workers who rent houses to buy small farms near by, raise their own food and "then you will have money." They still could work in the factories, he said.

He criticized the relief rolls of Atlanta and various cities because the employed have to "pay the bill."

He drew a word picture of the "saddest sight" he said he ever witnessed in connection with the labor situation.

People from the farms flock to the cities where there already is a plentiful supply of labor.

"When a manufacturer advertises that he wants to employ 300 or 400 men, you see 3,000 or 4,000 persons who answer the ad the next day," he said.

"That's why you need a representative who speaks one way and votes that same way," Talmadge asserted.

"Talmadge wants to get every man and woman a job," he added. "Well, I ain't working," came a voice from the crowd.

"I'll tell you why," Talmadge said. "Do you know what a project is? Well, it used to be working—now it's 'performance'."

Talmadge said he expects the "bosses and inspectors" of federal projects to vote against him.

"They know I'm poison to them," he declared.

"A project is a federal job which has two workers, four bosses, 10 inspectors and time keepers and a dozen visitors," the former Governor asserted.

ALL BODIES TAKEN FROM FIRE RUINS

In Atlanta were announced, following the grand jury conference with city officials.

City Attorney Jack Savage will be instructed to draw up the new ordinances, which when put into effect will be rigidly enforced, it was said.

Plans to prepare the new city ordinances were announced by members of the jury and city officials after they decided that the present city building code, established in 1924, is applicable only to buildings constructed since the new code.

The new ordinances will require sprinkler systems, automatic fire alarms and closed elevator shafts in all downtown hotels and buildings constructed before 1924 and termed fire hazards in a survey to be undertaken.

rented a room, residents said she was not in her room Friday morning, April 29. Parents found a dress she had worn the day before the floor and one of her sports dresses missing.

"She took none of her clothes and left a sum of money in a bank downtown," the brother said last night.

Miss Little had about $85 in her possession in cash on the night she disappeared, her brother said. She is described as being about five feet, seven inches tall, weighing 120 pounds and having light brown wavy hair, blue eyes and good health. She was wearing a brown coat suit, a spring coat and a pair of tan shoes when she left her home, the family believes.

WIFE IDENTIFIES HOTEL FIRE VICTIM

Talladega Man To Be Buried in Columbus.

The body of Harry Yeoman Wade, removed from the Terminal hotel wreckage early Tuesday night, was identified yesterday morning by his wife.

Wade, 29, was a Talladega, Ala., theater operator. His body was found near the elevator shaft in the center of the building.

Surviving, in addition to his wife, are a son, Donald Eugene Wade; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Wade, of Columbus, and a brother, Edmund Wade.

The body was taken to Columbus by J. Austin Dillon, for funeral services and burial.

2,500,000 GALLONS OF WATER WERE USED

Almost 2,500,000 gallons of water were pumped into the Terminal hotel during the six hours of fire-fighting Monday, fire records revealed yesterday. No hose sections broke during the blaze.

During the height of the blaze, 18 pumper trucks were in service, augmented by nine hook and ladder trucks. These pieces of equipment used approximately 850 gallons of gas. No breakdowns in apparatus were recorded; 21,000 feet of hose were used.

At the funeral home, attaches said they were informed the inquest would be held to establish the cause of death of one of the victims as an "example" which would be recognized for the entire group, under the law.

Scaffolding Used.
Razing of the shell of the hotel will begin in earnest this morning as workmen of C. R. and Turner Collins, contractors, complete scaffolding and start tearing down the building from the top.

To dynamite the structure would bring tons of brick and mortar thundering to the surface of Spring street, which might cause a collapse of the street surface, built above another street, it was said.

UNCASHED PAY CHECK IS FOUND IN RUBBISH

A check for $49.50, payable to Morris Kelly, and signed by J. M. Bussee, president of the Yates-American Machine Company, was found among old papers taken from the ruins of the Terminal hotel yesterday afternoon.

Police Captain S. J. Roberts found the uncashed check. He noticed it among a pile of rubbish that had been retrieved from the building. On it was the notation: "Salary to and including May 15."

duct structure, which extends out as far as the hotel, contractors said, adding about 30 days will be re- quired to complete the razing and that the owners have not indicated plans to rebuild.

Street Blocked.
While the walls are being taken down, Spring street will be blocked from Mitchell street to the north outlet of Terminal station. About six policemen were stationed at the site and will remain on duty until the razing is complete.

Mrs. Guy Coleman, widow of an Atlanta alderman, was still in serious condition yesterday at Grady hospital, while condition of Mrs. George P. Jones, wife of the hotel manager, was reported improved at Grady.

Condition of Ben L. Berry, 70-year-old hotel clerk, rescued from the flaming structure, was reported unchanged after his transfer from Grady to St. Joseph's hospital. William A. Clapp, of Round-man, N. C., remained in serious condition at Crawford W. Long hospital.

In its two-hour session with city officials early in the day, the grand jury praised the Atlanta fire department for an "excellent job of firefighting" in confining the Terminal hotel fire to one building. Grand jurors said the building was a fire hazard and established no blame for the fire.

Mayor Hartsfield, Fire Chief O. J. Parker, Police Chief M. A. Hornsby, City Building Inspector C. J. Bowen, Councilman John A. White, City Electrician Dewey Johnson, T. W. Clift, of the city schools department, and other officials conferred with the grand jury.

Grand jurors and city officials emphasized the conference was not in the nature of a probe into the Terminal hotel fire but was held to determine methods of preventing recurrence of a similar disaster.

And price?

Not a penny more than you would pay for little-known, or off-brand tires. No more than you would pay for tires of less quality. For Goodyear will not "fudge" on quality at any price.

Speedways GRIP better because they have anti-skid teeth of sturdy rubber blocks in the center of the tread where grip is needed most.

Just like the teeth of a gear wheel, Speedway shoulder-blocks dig into the sides of ruts, driving the wheel on through.

Supertwist cord, the backbone of a Speedway, can take more strain and stand up longer than the cord in ordinary tires. That's why it does a better job in sudden jolts, bumps, and curve-strains.

It's the combination of Center Traction, high, wide, and husky tread and Supertwist cord construction which makes Speedway the winner on those rough back roads.

50-PLANE CARAVAN LANDS AT ALBANY ON THIRD AIR TOUR

Pilots and Passengers Are Welcomed at Columbus and Americus.

ed by Dr. F. L. Adams Jr., of Atlanta, gave way just after he had made a perfect "three-pointer" at the Americus airport.

One wheel buckled, throwing the nose of the ship just far enough over to bend both tips of the propeller. Struts and one wing also were damaged, but none of the occupants was injured. It was the only mishap on the day's otherwise perfect record.

Weather Is Ideal.

Flying under ideal weather conditions, the fleet of private planes, said to be the largest ever assembled in the state, got away in perfect order from Candler field this morning and pilots and passengers alike were given rousing welcomes all along the route.

Hundreds turned out at the Columbus airport, first stop on the tour schedule, and still more hundreds greeted the party both at Americus and at Albany, the first overnight stop.

At Columbus, the Junior Chamber of Commerce entertained the visitors at a Dutch luncheon, providing transportation to and from the airport. Harry F. Boyce, chairman of the Junior Chamber committee, was in charge.

City Is Praised.

William K. Jenkins, general chairman in charge of the tour, acted as spokesman in expressing appreciation for the reception at Columbus and praised the city as "one of the most air-minded cities in the state."

From Columbus the fleet took off for Americus, a hop of 52 miles, where another welcome awaited. Refreshments were served at the hangar and what was even more inviting, 50 beautiful young Georgia "peaches" presented each pilot on the tour with a pig basket of Georgia peaches as a sample of the best-known crops of that section of Georgia.

Group Is Entertained.

Wallace Sheffield, Hawkins Dykes and William Carswell were in charge of Americus arrangements.

Still more elaborate entertainment was planned at Albany under the direction of Walter Brown. All members of the tour were guests at a barbecue at the American Legion Club, a theater party which featured an air mail week ceremony, and a dance at Radium Springs which brought the first day's schedule to a close.

The fleet will take to the air

Tribute to Darrow Paid by Convicts

REIDSVILLE, Ga., May 19.—(AP)—The convict population of Georgia's new penitentiary here was reminded today of the death of the late Clarence Darrow, famous defense attorney.

In a black-bordered box, the Tattall Tattall, prison magazine, noted "with profound regret the passing, recently, of the champion of the unfortunate."

"He received the final verdict in the greatest battle of his stormy career. Agnostic, unafraid to think, and with the courage of his convictions, Clarence Darrow conceded victory to the judge of eternal life."

Atlanta: W. O. Wall, Dealer; C. B. Gowen, Brunswick, and Mayor Richard Allen, Augusta.

Pilots joining the tour at Atlanta included:

Wesley N. Raymond, Macon; Ed Horton, Macon; Kyle Sloan, Macon; J. M. Lowe, Macon; Arnett Smallwood, Macon; William M. Corry, Macon; Lloyd Newbern, Macon; and Ralph F. Swaby, Columbus.

The tour was sponsored by chambers of commerce along the way and by the following organizations:

The Brunswick Board of Trade, Dinkler Hotels, Hotel Richmond at Augusta, Gulf Oil Corporation, Rich's, Inc., Atlanta, and Lucas & Jenkins Theaters.

Frank K. Shaw, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, said 45 planes, including those piloted by 23 Atlantians, left Atlanta. They were joined by eight here. Those who left at Atlanta include:

CEDILLO PREDICTS AN ATTACK TODAY

Says He Is Ready To Repel
Aggression Begun by Mexican President.

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 20.—(Friday)—General Saturnino Cedillo, accused by President Lazaro Cardenas of plotting a revolt, told the Associated Press this morning he had been informed federal troops would attack him today.

The Agrarian leader said he had "trustworthy" information that the president was planning to "try to crush me by force of arms."

He added defiantly: "I am ready to repel all aggression by means of arms, but I place the responsibility for the blood that may be shed on the caprice of the man who seeks to make of Mexico a dependency of the Soviet."

General Cedillo made his statement at Las Palomas, his estate near here. At the time only eight or ten men were there. All his armed Agrarians were gone. They had slipped away into the hills. It seemed that Cedillo would follow them shortly.

Yesterday President Cardenas expressed confidence he had eliminated the possibility of revolt by General Saturnino Cedillo's Agrarian army.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board estimated today the nation's banks had $2,560,000,000 of lendable funds on May 18, an increase of $80,000,000 over the previous week.

The lendable funds, as measured by excess reserves, have been advancing weekly as the result of the gold sterilization phase of the monetary program.

91-DEGREE WEATHER TO CONTINUE HERE

Despite 91-degree weather in Atlanta, the city swimming pools will not be opened until Saturday, May 28, George I. Simons, city parks manager, said yesterday.

Simons has previously set the opening date for May 28 but intimated the pools might be opened earlier if sufficiently warm weather prevailed.

"Even if the present high temperatures should continue, it would take several days for the water in the pools to become warm enough for swimming, since last week was fairly cool," the parks manager pointed out.

The mercury climbed up to 91 degrees yesterday, and the same high is predicted for today. The low will be near 68 degrees and skies will be clear, the forecaster said. Low reading yesterday was 69 degrees.

FORDHAM RECORDS SEVERE EARTH SHOCKS

NEW YORK, May 19.—(UP)—Three "severe earth shocks" were reported tonight by the Fordham University seismograph station here, with the epicenter at a distance of approximately 8,400 miles from New York city.

After school playgrounds now operating in the city will be closed during the institute, it was announced.

Freight Rate Differentials Must Go, Rivers Declares

John C. Gall, Paul K. McKenney Also Address Textile Group.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., May 19.—(AP)—Georgia cotton manufacturers heard a forecast by Governor Rivers today that "freight rate discrimination (against the south) finally will be eliminated."

"Congressman Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, has a bill designed to accomplish this purpose," the Governor said. "No greater service could be rendered Georgia than by passage of the Ramspeck bill or some similar measure to the same end."

Governors Rivers, John C. Gall, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, and Paul K. McKenney, president of the Georgia Association, were principal speakers at the 38th annual convention of the Georgia manufacturers.

Foreign Importations. Governor Rivers said unrestricted importation of foreign goods and freight differentials were "artificial economic barriers" that retarded establishment of prosperity in the south.

Advocating quota limitations by the tariff commission, the Governor said he found it "hard to understand" why the government had neglected to protect cotton farmers from East Indian jute.

"Even the United States post office buys millions of pounds of jute twice each year in preference to cotton," he said.

"It is high time that the south be accorded the same protective treatment that other sections of the country enjoy."

Governor Rivers said the salvation of the south lies in industry.

"The south," he declared, "has at last become industrial-minded. It cannot attain and maintain the high national honor, distinction and prosperity to which it is rightfully entitled as long as we are dependent upon a strictly agricultural economy."

South's Transition. Tracing the gradual development of southern industry since the War Between the States, Governor Rivers cited figures showing increased employment in industry and a corresponding decrease in agricultural employment.

"These figures," he said, "are sufficient to prove the existence of a definite trend toward greater industrialization and less dependence upon agriculture as a primary source of wealth."

He discussed at length the natural resources the south has to offer to industry, and discussed industrial taxation, adding "I do not believe in completely exempting industry from local and state taxes, because I feel that in return for the many advantages which they enjoy in the south, they should all, without exception, bear their proportionate taxes to pay for the governmental services which they receive."

Differential Issue. Discussing freight rate differentials, he said "for years the railroads attempted to justify this disparity by claiming that the greater density of traffic in the north and east produced lower operating costs that in turn permitted lower freight rates. But this fallacy was exploded several years ago . . . by facts that proved that operating costs, per ton mile, are lower in the south than in the north and east."

"The south's minority membership on the Interstate Commerce Commission," he said, "will never be able to remove this discrimination against southern agriculture and industry until all groups within the south join hands to force its removal. . . . The fight promises to be a long and bitter one, with the odds against us.

"The south can never assume its proper place in our national economy until this freight rate differential is removed. . . . We must work together to destroy these economic barriers."

Gall Raps Labor Act.

Gall told the group "balancing the Wagner act is as important as balancing the budget."

"Something is seriously wrong," Gall said. "When, despite complete control of local employment relations by the federal government, the country witnesses over 4,500 industrial disputes in one year. Industry lives in the shadow of the strike, the boycott, and the imported picket line. It takes no astrologist to see why under such conditions employment lags, new investment ceases, expansion is delayed."

The Wagner act, he said, operates "exclusively against the employer."

"It puts no restraint of any kind on employees or labor organizations. It assumes that employers are the only persons who can be guilty of coercion, intimidation or restraint practiced against employees. The facts of our daily industrial life demonstrate the contrary."

McKenney's Address.

McKenney, also criticizing the labor measure, asked: "With a one-sided national labor relations act in force, and with a board even more partisan to enforce it, what inducement is there to invest money in buildings and equipment? Capital is timid and will go into hiding and stay there until it feels safe to venture out."

McKenney said the law should be changed to "at least give business equal rights with labor, and it is gratifying to know that this is being realized by an increasing number of our citizens."

"Business might be likened to a mule," he said, "because it has a lot of punishment, live on mighty little, and take care of itself under very adverse conditions, and it certainly has been told that it is stubborn. But even a mule can finally become hardened to rough treatment it will make no effort to speed up and it can be starved to death."

expected prompt approval of the directors' action at a special stockholders' meeting. Sawyer said no date has been decided as yet for the special meeting.

Sawyer, it was understood, would go to Memphis next week to continue negotiations with municipal authorities there for the sale of National Power & Light's subsidiary in that city.

The principal negotiations involving TVA and private systems, however, are those for the sale of properties of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, comprising all of the system of the Tennessee Electric Power Company, the largest in the state, the slices of the Mississippi Power, Alabama Power and Georgia Power Companies. It was believed likely these negotiations would be resumed to the point of discussing price in the near future, following an independent audit of the properties.

The Knoxville negotiations had been dragging on since the spring of 1934 and at one time the utility company had agreed to sell out at $6,088,000 for the same properties as in today's transactions. This was halted by a group of preferred stockholders and the negotiations were abandoned altogether after the private companies in the valley brought a joint suit against TVA, challenging its constitutionality. The supreme court has accepted this suit for review, after it was first decided in favor of TVA.

QUICK END IS SEEN TO NEGOTIATIONS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 19.—(AP)—The city's long fight to obtain TVA power for distribution over a municipally-owned system appeared near an end tonight.

Informed sources here believed final acceptance of the city-TVA offer of $7,900,000 for the electric properties of the Tennessee Public Service Company would be a mere formality.

Mayor Walter W. Mynatt declared tonight the city would not stop construction of its own distribution plant until the deal was finally closed.

The mayor said he would make an oral report on the negotiations to city council tomorrow morning. He said he did not know when council would meet to ratify the deal nor would he disclose what part of the $7,900,000 the city would pay.

SCANDAL PAPERS REPORTED STOLEN

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP) Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, charged tonight his office had been looted of documents that would stir up a "little stink" and said he pertained to the Tennessee Valley Authority scandal.

The young New Englander, who has led the fight for an investigation of alleged corruption within the TVA, revealed the robbery when he introduced a resolution authorizing a $1,000 reward for conviction of any person unlawfully stealing property of a senator. Bridges, foe of the New Deal's TVA power program, told reporters he believed "politics" was behind the raid on his office although he conceded that some other senators, including Democrats, had complained of recent burglaries.

TROOPS TO 'DEFEND' FORT IN 'ATTACKS'

er, of the first cavalry, is scheduled to leave first, as it has a longer trek. Its route is Elizabethtown, Buffalo, Glasgow and Tompkinsville, Ky., and Carthage and Cookeville, Tenn. At this point it will bivouac tomorrow night. The left, or east column, commanded by Colonel C. L. Scott, of the 13th cavalry, will speed by the way of Elizabethtown, Hodgenville, Columbia and Somerset, Ky., spending the night at Monticello.

Each column will include artillery, medical, supply, ordnance and headquarters units plus supply trains. The units will travel at approximately 25 miles an hour.

While the columns move southward, ground reconnaissance detachments will spread out to the right, left and ahead over a specified area and will be supported by the brigade's own airplane squadron. On the return trip, the brigade will leave Fort Oglethorpe next Monday, proceed to Nashville for a rest Tuesday, and then speed back to Fort Knox Tuesday night to deliver a dawn attack on this post. It will be defended by the 10th infantry brigade already on the post under command of Brigadier General W. K. Naylor.

ONE FUGITIVE CONVICT RETAKEN IN GWINNETT

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., May 19.—Sheriff J. P. Mason, of Gwinnett county, today reported the capture of Harry Copeland, 24, one of four convicts reported earlier to have fled a Clayton county public work camp near Jonesboro. The quartet overpowered a Clayton county guard, and seized a county truck for their flight. The guard and a trusty who refused to join in the break were driven about 15 miles into a wooded section of adjoining Henry county, where they were stripped of their clothing and put out of the truck.

E. S. Rowell was the guard overpowered. The prisoners were working on a road project north of Jonesboro.

NEW TREATMENT FOR CANCER HAILED AS GOOD PROSPECT

Use of Newly Discovered Powder Termed Experimental,
Yet Promising.

A new treatment for cancer which its discoverer, Dr. James R. Garner, Atlanta railway surgeon, says "appears to offer the brightest prospect of a cure" was discussed before members of the Fulton County Medical Society last night.

Dr. Garner presented two patients who apparently have been cured by use of the newly discovered powder known as Apsa, which, he says, has little or no effect on healthy tissue and yet seemingly has the power to destroy cancer.

"Industrial Medicine," official organ of the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons and other medical societies, presents a paper by Dr. Garner on the new treatment in its current issue.

In Experimental Stage. The physician explained that the treatment is still in its experimental stage and that it cannot be considered a positive cure, since no cancer is considered cured until at least five years have elapsed without a recurrence. He added, however, that he had apparently successfully treated more than 100 cases in the last few months.

Members of the Fulton County Medical Society declined to comment on the new discovery, with the exception of Dr. J. L. Campbell, chairman of the cancer commission of the Medical Association of Georgia, who said "no remedy for cancer can be classed as a cure until the patient has remained well from three to five years." Pointing to the selective action of Apsa, Dr. Garner said "it can be taken internally, placed in open wounds, even rubbed on the eyeball, without injury."

Tissue Not Affected. "However," he continued, "inherent as this product is with reference to normal tissues, the moment it comes in contact with neoplasm it instantly becomes active in its destructive effects, resulting in the death and mummification of the cancerous growth with the formation of a definite line of demarcation when and where normal tissue is contacted."

The surgeon said medical men have never been satisfied with the effectiveness of either X-ray, radium or surgery in the treatment of cancer. He explained that these remedies necessarily affect normal tissues to some extent.

While this treatment seems to offer the hope of a great boon to humanity, sight must not be lost to the fact that all cancers at some time or other will reach a state of development and metastasis spreading to other parts of the body, after which nothing can be done," he said.

It is our hope that a satisfactory means of combatting that deadly enemy of the human race, cancer, is at hand," he declared. Dr. Garner lives at 1573 Peachtree street and has been a physician and surgeon in Atlanta since 1901. In addition to being chief surgeon for the Atlanta & West Point Railroad Company, the Western Railway of Alabama and the Georgia Railroad, he is professor of forensic medicine at the University of Georgia School of Medicine at Augusta and author of numerous medical papers. He also is a member of several medical groups.

WILL TESTIFY IN GRAFT PROBE

Ground Approached in Investigation.

Hearing new phases of its inquiry into law conference graft, the Fulton county grand jury will question approximately 15 witnesses this morning.

The jury session yesterday was conducted by Solicitor General A. Boykin. Special Prosecutor E. E. Andrews was reported at home. Andrews has indicated that action against former deputy sheriffs is "just about complete," but that more city policemen and six former deputy sheriffs have been indicted on very charges since the March 11 jury took up the graft probe.

ME DAIRY FARMERS TO VOTE ON CONTROL

An election will be held in Rome May 31 to determine whether dairy farmers of the Rome milk district desire to come under the milk control act.

A majority of Floyd county farmers petitioned for an election and a majority vote is needed to place the farmers under provisions of the law.

The control law sets a minimum of 14 cents per quart on milk to consumers. Dairy farmers in 14 of the larger cities in the state are operating under the law.

A LONDON LOAN FAILS

Evidence of a mounting revulsion among the British people against increasingly heavy expenditures for government is found in the rather spectacular failure of a new loan recently offered to investors by the London County Council. This was for a total of 10,000,000 pounds sterling, with a maturity date 30 years hence.

In commenting on the failure of the loan, one observer said "there is little feeling of certainty among investing peoples anywhere respecting the value of any currency 30 years from now."

In that sentence is revealed the basic psychology which is withholding essential capital from investment. In this case the investment was in a local government, similar to the municipal governments of the United States. Yet the same situation may easily be applied to all governments which pursue a policy of extravagant spending and ever-mounting tax imposts upon the people.

Of course the United States and its governmental subdivisions is yet far from the situation of Britain. But there has been, in this country, a steady tendency toward mounting costs of administration and all governmental functions. We are on the same road and, unless a halt is quickly called, we shall face the same inability to tempt investors that is now being experienced in London.

Public expenditures on a huge scale can only result in eventual devaluation of public currency. Debts contracted now must be paid, some day, and it is inevitable that if those public debts mount too high they will be met with money of lowered purchasing value.

There should be little surprise at the reluctance of capital to invest in long-term securities, for capital realizes better than anyone else the likelihood of depreciation before those securities fall due.

No one desires to invest dollars worth even 60 cents in an undertaking which will, in all probability, repay the debt in dollars worth only a fraction of that value.

The only safe road to avoid drastic currency depreciation, in Britain or in the United States, is to institute a program of sharp curtailment of governmental expenditure—federal, state, county, district and city—and to begin using present tax revenues to lower the heavy burden of public debt. To balance the budgets, in short, and begin repaying what we, as taxpayers, already owe.

CREDITABLE WORK

In the tragedy which Monday morning struck in the Terminal hotel fire, the work of the fire and police departments was outstanding, more noteworthy because of the criticism of both following in the trail of other recent tragedies.

Despite the fact there was little or nothing that either department could do in the work of rescue, even with the speed with which they swung into action, certain factors stood out.

In the work of the fire department, the wisdom of the purchase of the new 85-foot automatic ladder truck was shown. The greater mobility and value of the apparatus was easily evident to even the untrained eye. The firemen hesitated in their work not a minute, despite the dangers of entering the half-collapsed structure and from the weakened walls.

For the first time at recent fires, the police department was able to control curious crowds and the handling of the work showed careful, intelligent direction on the part of superior officers.

Fire tragedies can be prevented, and greater tragedies which conceivably could be their outcome must be prevented. Both departments proved their mettle Monday and Tuesday despite the terrific handicaps under which they worked.

Maybe the '40 conventions will open with an appeal by the temporary chairman: "Is there anyone in the hall who knows anything about a pump?"

A VITAL LEGAL DISTINCTION

Various interpretations have been placed on a ruling of the United States supreme court announced last Monday. The court held that striking employees of the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company must be returned to their posts.

Laymen in scanning the decision of the court have gained the general impression it was held that striking employees must be returned to their jobs without condition. A more careful analysis of the supreme court ruling, however, reveals a distinction which is a vital legal point, one which should not be misconstrued since it involves a principle long followed by the high court, one which the court did not change, although a general impression that it did has prevailed.

However, the decision was a decision on determination of fact, not on principle. In other words, the court held in this specific case that the facts surrounding the case warranted the ruling of the labor board returning to their jobs the employees involved. The case resulted from a strike in the San Francisco office of the company. After a three-day strike, the majority of the employees returned to work, the company re-employing all but 11 men. These men had been officers and leading spirits in the union. Later six of the 11 were returned to work but the five most prominent in union activities were informed their places had been filled. The labor board ordered their reinstatement on the ground the men were being punished for their union activity and not because their employer had in good faith replaced them. The supreme court held the evidence warranted this order.

The court very carefully pointed out they were deciding only this question and took occasion to reiterate the principle that an employer has the right to protect and continue his business by supplying places left vacant by strikers and he is not bound to discharge those hired to fill the places of strikers upon the election of the strikers to resume their employment. It was this reiteration which has been largely overlooked.

IS IT COMING TO THIS?

Although the recent poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion indicated the American people as a whole are still opposed to the lottery as a means of filling the public treasury, it is astonishing that 49 per cent of those approached on the question voted in favor of it. Can it be that this is indicative of a general let-down in the moral tone of the people?

The approximate half who voted affirmatively argued that, inasmuch as tremendous sums annually go into gambling, such as horse racing, "bug" operations and other well-known institutions, the government might just as well take its share of the loot. It was not a question of morals. Just plain 1938 realism. But the opposing 51 per cent rejected the idea on the broad moral grounds that government be kept clean; that it should not, under any circumstances, accept tax money from sources even remotely associated with gambling.

The most astonishing indication of a let-down, however, was not to be found so much in the closeness of the vote as in the fact that only 51 per cent of the people questioned thought government operated lotteries would release an unwholesome gambling spirit in the country. If all this means that the moral fiber of the people is becoming less durable, it is at least gratifying to note that the strongest sectional opposition to the idea, 63 per cent of those questioned, was registered in the south.

Another angle, probably less astonishing than paradoxical, is that a government lottery, according to the poll, is much more popular among the poor than among middle-class and well-to-do people. Is getting ahead then to be considered more as a matter of luck than a result of hard work? Can this notion be an offshoot of that present popular philosophy that it is less wicked to get something for nothing than to earn it by the sweat of the brow, by thrift, by industry?

In any event, when a nation, and its component parts, as rich as the United States, is apparently so hard put for revenue that 49 per cent of its people are willing to go into the gaming business to pay for their extravagance, it is undoubtedly time to pause in the headlong, streamlined plunge, to take stock.

Gambling is a human instinct that must be controlled by the individual. It cannot be maintained that the body of law against this evil is insufficient. The laws are on the statute books. But, as in the case of prohibition, no law can be enforced against a people who do not want to obey it. To encourage gambling on a gigantic scale, however, by establishing a government lottery, or state lotteries, would be intolerable. It would be nothing less than an invitation to a breakdown in public morals.

Haile Selassie wouldn't be half as irritating if he wasn't right.

Par: A Kansas City woman driver, in a long skid, sheared off three gas pumps out of three in front of a service station.

Il Duce's fight talk at Genoa included us in his challenge. It is not known how this affects Boss Hague's dream of a Rome-Jersey City axis.

Editorial of the Day

IT STILL LIVES

(From the Baltimore Sun.)

The Klux Klan languishes in most sections of the United States these days, but it still lives in Florida. At the beginning of Miami's winter season a delegation of hooded Klansmen raided one of the city's "hot spots" and broke up the furniture. The other day, as recorded in the Miami Herald, Klansmen paraded openly in motor cars, ignoring traffic lights and such few policemen as were encountered along the route of the parade. The chief of police, asked if he were a member of the Klan, gave the evasive reply, "I haven't anything to say about that."

These and other episodes indicate that in Florida at least the Klan retains considerable power and that it stands not for the rule of law but for rule by the Klan. The aloofness of the police to Klansmen in Miami is a particularly suggestive symptom—bringing up street scenes in Berlin and Vienna during the critical days when order was defied by clamorous Nazis and policemen stood idly by. Perhaps, and it is to be hoped, the comparison is merely superficial.

AMERICA SPEAKS

Poll Finds Election Vote Related to Federal Spending; Effect on Voting Preference of Relief Pay Crop Benefits, Loans and Soldiers' Bonus Measured in Nationwide Poll.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, May 19.—With the Roosevelt administration pressing to secure passage of its new four-billion-dollar spending and lending program, political observers are turning their attention to a question which has been asked repeatedly since the New Deal embarked on its first program of spending for relief and recovery: How much do federal benefit payments and loans influence the voting preference of the electorate?

In a unique study of political sentiment among persons who have received relief money, crop payments, home loans, etc., and those who have not, the Institute has gathered important facts that bear vitally on this question. The study indicates that persons who have received benefit payments from the government are more pro-Roosevelt than those who have not received such benefits, and reveals the principle that the more urgent the economic need of the recipient the greater has been the tendency to vote for the administration.

How Classes Voted.

The Institute's study was based on a correlation of answers to two questions in a nationwide survey. The first question asked whether the respondent had received money from the government during the past four years for relief, crop control, soldiers' bonus, or in the form of home or land loans. The second question was, "For which candidate did you vote in the 1936 presidential election?"

Here is how the various classes of voters who say they received Federal aid, and those who say they did not, voted in 1936:

For For
Roosevelt London
Relief or land loans 73 27

For For
Roosevelt London
Farmers who received crop benefits 68 32

For For
Roosevelt London
Farmers who did not receive crop benefits 56 44

Was It Soap Recipes?

Our old friend Charlie Killian wants to know whether the "soap man" referred to here a few days ago in a quotation from Frank L. Stanton in The Smithville News of Ohio, was really selling soap, or merely recipes for making soap at home?

"Perhaps," writes Charlie, "the 'soap man' mentioned was one of the chaps who at that time were traveling through the country selling a recipe for home-made soap and, in some instances, for an additional fee, perhaps—super-vising the bilin'."

"Whether my folks bought a recipe or not I do not remember, but I saw some of the soap. In color and translucency it much resembled Pear's soap, once so popular with the fastidious."

"When I was a small boy all country people in this section had in their back yards an ash hopper into which was dumped the soap, and in some instances, for an additional fee, perhaps—super-vising the bilin'."

"How do they do it? They have been brought up since babyhood to realize that each one has chores to do and he must do them promptly. The parents go about their own work uncomplainingly. They refuse to acknowledge that work on a farm is drudgery. Parents and children work and play together."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, May 20, 1913:

"When charges of 'pantheism' and 'Hindoo philosophy' were hurled Monday afternoon at the Union Theological Seminary—one of the oldest and wealthiest of America's Christian schools of theology—a sensation was sprung in the assembly of the U. S. A. Presbyterian church that has seen few parallels in the history of denominational conventions."

And Fifty Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Sunday, May 20, 1888:

"According to the Chicago News the average cost in that city of persuading men to become church members is about $40, but the average cost of converting the average Chicagoan to some form of Christianity is $394,236.00."

Historic Mischance.

Three centuries ago, on or about April 29, 1638, the British government placed in effect a decree of King Charles I. requiring all emigrants to obtain from the Archbishop of Canterbury, or the Bishop of London, permission to leave England, said permission to be granted only to those known to be conformist to the Established (Anglican) church.

His majesty's minister and ecclesiastical advisers had become alarmed at the marked increase in the number of emigrants to New England, who, they suspected, were desirous of escaping the authority of the Church of England.

Nevertheless, the decree was a sad error for Charles to make. For it caused officials to turn back one earnest man who had already arranged for his passage to America. Forced to stay home, he became the leader of the revolution that cost Charles I. his head. The young man's name was Oliver Cromwell.

Canada.

The Dominion of Canada was created by act of British parliament in 1867. The first draft of the act gave the title of "Kingdom of Canada" to the new confederation. It was changed because it was feared this would offend the sensibilities of the United States.

"Dominion" was suggested instead by a Briton who recalled a verse in the Bible (Psalm 72:9).

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

HITLER AND NEW YORK, May 19.—Well, maybe some of our public officials have run out of the little too freely of late about the native American abhorrence of war and dictatorships, but Mussolini and Hitler should be the last men in the world to complain of that. They love to dish it, and anyone who makes a practice of dish-ing it must expect to take it in his turn.

Mussolini and Hitler have been making dirty cracks about us and Britain, France, Russia and Czechoslovakia for years, and it is not so long since they were talking the same way about each other or each other's people, which amounts to the same thing.

It is written in Hitler's own creed, the Nazi Bible, that the Italians, or, anyway, the southern Italians, are a low race because they are dark-eyed and dark-skinned and have short legs. Marriage between a blond, blue-eyed, long-legged Nazi and an Italian of this description was condemned as something in the nature of miscegenation, or race defilement, on the ground that the Mediterranean races, which include many Italians, had a touch of the tar brush. For extra the Nazis took a roundhouse swing at the proud Roman beak, or schnozzle, declaring it to be a mark of racial inferiority and knowing that the aquiline nose of the Romans is so opinionated because it resembles the beak of an eagle.

Dictators' There was rivalry between Mussolini and Hitler at the time, Mussolini personally despised Hitler as an imitator and had received a bad impression of Hitler when Adolf visited Rome to pick up ideas. They and their press—which, of course, speak their ideas and say nothing without permission—were sneering back and forth across Austria, and you can find in the old files, if they have not since been edited, insults which make the angriest remarks of our statesmen and propagandists about them and their systems sound like the love murmurs of an infatuated sophomore.

It was wondering what private thoughts of King Victor Emmanuel had when he met Hitler in Rome the other day, remembering what Hitler had said about the inferiority of short-legged and hook-nosed people, because the king is so short his feet barely reach the ground and his nose, as the pictures clearly show, has an elbow about four inches from the tip.

Mussolini was dishing, too, at the time, and most of what they said was so silly and childish that the nations' peoples of the world found it hard to believe that such nasty, petulant remarks could represent the official opinions of nations claiming to be great and demanding to be treated with respect.

Abundant The dishing in Italy at the time the League of Nations voted the sanctions, or boycott, against Italy for flat violation of an agreement sounded like the raging of a spoiled brat in a tantrum. Mussolini and his journalists insulted every statesman and every nation on the list of sanctionists, and I heard the Duce deliver one speech to a lot of poor, muddy peasants in which he stamped around exactly like a pampered little boy in a rage and at times went off into screams. I never saw an orator make such a spectacle of himself.

Now, it does seem an absurd way for nations to act toward one another, and I think we lower our standards and let them make the rules of repartee for us and draw us into spats. But they began this kind of thing, and we in this country have no idea of the dirty things which they have been saying about us for years, because most of it has been editorial taste. And, although the American outbursts have done our dignity no good, it may not be a bad idea to let them know that they are supposed to be grown up and are expected to develop some civil manners.

During their recent childhood they got away with much offensive conduct for the same reason that unruly children are allowed to impose on the patience of their elders. They always talk war. Well, this country certainly doesn't want a war and isn't in shape for one, and it is ghastly to think that a lot of mouth might have such dreadful consequences.

Hospitality.

French hospitality that we knew before the war had its finest illustration on Mont St. Michel, the castle on the rocky island of Normandy. Here was a hotel keeper, who presided over a kitchen of medieval splendor and who had such princely traits that you did not have to pay unless you wished. When the time came to leave, there was no bill. You had to remember what you had. The system worked well.

"Everyone is honest who comes to the Mont," said the genial waiter, "St. Michel protects us." In ancient times there was a tale to the effect that when anyone was fed here who could not afford to pay, God always worked some miracle in favor of the landlord.

The Invited Guest Sacrifices All Rights When He Tries to Poison the Soup

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When 60 veterans, protected only by their fists, invaded a New York hotel where 2,000 Nazis were celebrating Hitler's birthday, they went into battle against blackjacks and heavy belt buckles, they showed magnificent courage but absolute zero in judgment.

The natural result of the beating they got was a redoubling of the nation-wide demand that Nazi organizations be suppressed. Cooler heads, as usual, were quick to answer that nothing should be done because any such suppression would violate the principles of democracy and imitate the very evil it would destroy.

But drifting is not wise in dangerous waters. The whole earth is now like a powder magazine where a single spark may cause disaster, and any such incident as that in New York could be the fatal spark.

Several things can be done and should be done at once to prevent further risks.

First, every alien found guilty of a criminal offense should be argued that a free land is obligated to harbor foreigners who imported immediately. Even the most sentimental idealist will not jure it.

When America offers asylum to the oppressed, they make an unwritten contract to be worthy of that hospitality.

Second, under authority of our present laws and such new ones as may be necessary, any resident alien who joins an organization that pays allegiance to a foreign government and has as its purpose the destruction of democracy, should be arrested and deported; and any citizen who joins an organization subservient to a foreign government should be deprived of his citizenship.

That is the simple common sense of self-preservation. The most tolerant will not argue that freedom must harbor enemies who scheme to destroy freedom. And it is obvious that a traitor to his country sacrifices the right to be a citizen.

What, then, of citizens whose beliefs are not popular? The answer is that free men are free. They may think and believe and say and do anything on earth they please, so long as they violate no law. Freedom, like chastity, cannot be qualified. To take away a little destroys the whole. We may hate a man's opinions, but a free land must defend his right to voice them.

But a free land has every right not denied by law or the standards of decency, the alien has no rights whatever except that of police protection and the courtesy due a well-behaved guest.

This Morning GOOD MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Thou madest man; he knows not why.

He thinks he was not born to die . . ."

The complexities of modern civilization will fix a colonial economy upon the south unless our engineering students conquer social and economic as well as technical problems, thinks President Harmon W. Caldwell, of the University of Georgia, in a speech at the annual meeting of the American Association of Engineers in Atlanta.

It isn't enough in these days of infinite inter-relationships to know how to shift the gears and turn the switches and oil the bearings of the machines we have invented. It is necessary also to know how to handle these machines, what to do with them, how to make a civilization and an economy out of them. It is necessary to turn economic switches, shift sociological gears, oil psychological bearings.

"Whereas you little carried away with yourself last week about the southern women golf players," suggests a Lynchburg, Va., correspondent. "They are very nice girls but there's no sense making goddesses of them." Our correspondent should know that sterner stuff. Southern women are hardy, carried still further away in appreciation of some of these young women.

Listen to the stern and wise editor of the State (Columbia), for example, in recent editorial comment on Kathryn Hemphill's selection for America's Curtis Cup team: "Have you seen her play? This writer has followed her in an exhibition match when they said she was off her game, tired, and even staid; of the swing of her stroke, the body of the swing, the club of the far, true flight of her drive! And, oh, the wonder to the piker at golf of the amazingly small score, despite the off-game afternoon!"

The editor of the State would be no less admiring in praise of Peggy Chandler, of Texas, if he could have seen her play in the recent southern title event. He will be interested in knowing that she plays the piano, too, like a goddess.

That the march of time vindicates Woodrow Wilson and will do so more and more is the opinion of Mr. William H. Fleming, one of the south's most distinguished lawyers, in a letter to this column. We agree with him. Even as England's prime minister devotes himself to a so-called "realism" in foreign relations, which is another name for opportunism and patchwork, he is careful to preserve Wilson's League. He knows that in the long run collective security is the only hope of world peace.

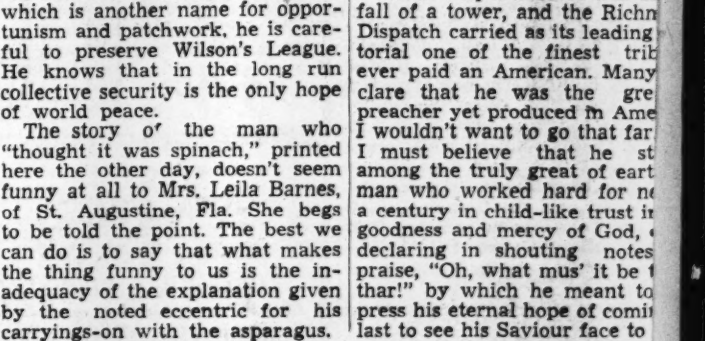

The story of the man who "thought it was spinach," printed here the other day, doesn't seem funny at all to Mrs. Leila Barnes, of St. Augustine, Fla. She begs to be told the point. The best we can do is to say that what makes the thing funny to us is the inadequacy of the explanation given by the noted eccentric for his carryings-on with the asparagus.

In this volume, which I am going to provoke you to read, will find several of Jasper's poems in his native dialect, notes "What Sin Kum Frum" (Seben Wimmim), "De Stone Cud Mountain," "De Sun Do M and 'Gravel Grave' What's the Victory?" That last sermon Heaven is one of the gran things I have ever read. Ja carries on a dialogue between Death and, in which he ca Death to say:

"Ain't got no victory now, victory, but King Jesus pars'd dis lan' an' told my ban deom."

When Jasper died it was as fall of a tower, and the Richm Dispatch carried as its leading editorial one of the finest tributes ever paid an American. Many clare that he was the greatest preacher yet produced in America. I wouldn't want to go that far. I must believe that he st among the truly great of ear man who worked hard for ne a century in child-like trust in goodness and mercy of God, declaring in shouting notes praise, "Oh, what must be that!" by which he meant to press his eternal hope of com last to see his Saviour face to

Daladier Grows.

NEW YORK—Premier Daladier, of France, has taken bold steps to lift his country from the economic bog in which it is mired. And each day he is gaining stature as the man needed by France at the present moment of crisis. If France will take Daladier's medicine and adhere to his regimen, its recovery will be steady and rapid and the serious threat that it will be relegated to a secondary position in the European concert will be eliminated. His prescriptions are drastic, but it seems to me that drastic medicine is necessary at this time in France and in some other countries that I could mention.

Daladier was granted decree powers by parliament after the fall of the Blum cabinet. He is a dictator in fact, although he does not construe his role to be that of a Hitler or a Mussolini. His first act was to tell the French that unless they call off their political bickering, stop nation-wide strikes and go to work to bring production up to normal, the government will move in and take charge in typical totalitarian fashion.

While waiting for this thought to percolate, he went to London and signed a new treaty of friendship with Great Britain, which is a potent warning to all the troublemakers on the continent. Included in this pact is an understanding on Spain which relieves the pressure from that quarter. A separate treaty with Mussolini is in the offing. Thus has the premier taken care of his diplomatic fences, permitting him greater freedom in dealing with internal affairs.

Tax Increases.

During the past week he has issued several important decrees. All national taxes have been increased 8 per cent, a stiff burden that will fall on every man and woman who earns and spends a franc. Government departments were instructed to reduce expenditures and operate on a strict budget. The tourist trade—an important industry—was granted reduced railroad fares, lower gasoline prices and other concessions. The franc, wobbling for months, was pegged at 28 to the dollar, a 9 per cent devaluation under the average rates of the past 10 months. Under this policy the government makes a paper profit of 25,000,000,000 francs, but more important, "flight" money on deposit in foreign banks will be returned to France. This is a stabilizing measure not in disagreement with the monetary pact signed in 1936 by France, the United States and England.

And Daladier has only started. His firm stand has already returned 162,000 strikers to their tasks, confidence in the government is reflected in the financial upswing and the tax burdens are being accepted with a grimace but with no demonstrative protests. M. Daladier seems to have the situation well in hand.

Rector Favors Public Whipping Of Boy Thieves

FITCHBURG, Mass., May 19.—(AP)—An Episcopal rector tonight upheld a judge who ordered the parents of two boys, found guilty of stealing, to "horsewhip their sons publicly within three weeks."

Even as the parents of William Allen, 15, and Harold Woodworth, 16, branded Judge Thomas F. Gallagher's order "uncivilized," and declined to enforce it, the Rev. Frederick H. Fleet, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, said they should show their "gratitude" to the judge for saving the boys from a jail sentence.

"No one can doubt the judge was convinced that a whipping, better than any other punishment, would return the boys to honest tasks," Mr. Fleet said.

"Surely there can be no shame of degradation in the proper punishment of a child for wrongdoing."

WORLD UNION BARS RUSSIAN WORKERS

American Delegate Leads Fight Against Communism.

OSLO, Norway, May 19.—(AP)—The International Federation of Trade Unions today voted against accepting affiliation of Soviet Russia's 22,000,000 trade union members on charges of opponents that their entry into the federation would be "inconsistent with democracy."

Negotiations with the Soviet unions were terminated on a motion sponsored by the United States, Netherlands, Swiss, Belgian and Polish delegations. Four delegations, those of Mexico, Spain and two from France, voted for admission of Russia while a total of 14 votes were cast against the proposal.

The United States delegate, Mathew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, indicated that conditions under which the United States was affiliated to the International Federation would have been violated by the admission of Russia.

"We will not co-operate either directly or indirectly with Russian trade unions," Woll said.

CHINESE AIRPLANES FLY OVER JAPAN

Flight Was First of Kind in History of Air Force.

HANKOW, May 20.—(Friday.)—Chinese officials announced today that Chinese airplanes took off last night on a flight across the China sea and flew for several hours early today over the islands of Kyushu and Honshu in Japan proper.

The flight, the first of its kind in the history of the Chinese air force. Instead of dropping bombs, the planes scattered handbills over the Japanese territory.

The statement said that no Japanese planes took to the air in pursuit when the Chinese craft passed over the islands and directly above the city of Osaka. Neither was there any firing from anti-aircraft guns. The only sign of a complete blackout throughout the area over which the planes flew.

The Chinese planes returned safely to their unnamed base, it was added.

CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ITS 102D ANNIVERSARY

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., May 19.—Governor Rivers will be one of the speakers at the celebration of the 102d anniversary of Stilesboro Methodist church, in Bartow county, Sunday, May 29, the Rev. T. H. Wheeler, in charge of the celebration, has announced.

Coming a day after the Governor's anticipated announcement of his plans for the 1938 primary, the proposed speech has aroused a great deal of interest in political circles throughout this section.

The historic Stilesboro church, formerly known as Brandon's Chapel, has figured prominently in the growth and development of Bartow county since its establishment in 1836. The Rev. Mr. Wheeler said. Services have been held continuously since that time, with the exception of a brief period during the War Between the States.

Ramsay, chief executive secretary of the Georgia Education Association, is scheduled to deliver the graduation address at Center school. I. S. Ingram, president of West Georgia College, Carrollton, is slated to speak to graduates of Hillcrest school, and the Rev. S. P. Spiegel and C. M. Phipam, both of West Point, are listed as commencement speakers for Gray Hill and Rosemont, respectively.

Samaritan Mdy Get Proceeds From Estate

MARIETTA, Ga., May 19.—For a deed of kindness done 28 years ago to a stranger traveling along Atlanta road, Mrs. J. B. Maner, of near Smyrna, may receive the proceeds from a valuable estate somewhere near Tampa.

Her lawyers are seeking to locate the estate and are basing their search on newspaper stories carried March 19, 1925, in Atlanta and Marietta newspapers. It was at that time that Mrs. Maner was notified that a Mr. Hollins willed her large holdings, including an orange grove, a home and a stock farm. At that time, however, Mrs. Maner failed to go to Florida to make her claim, but recently received a search for the property.

Two Great Fires Raging in City Japanese Occupy 'Doomed' Suchow;

Troops Engaged in 'Annihilating Remnants of the Defeated Chinese Army'; Occupation Links Northern and Southern Areas.

SHANGHAI, May 20.—(Friday.)—The Japanese army today announced complete occupation of Suchow, the military heart of eastern China.

The announcement said Japanese troops had taken the city late yesterday and were "engaged in annihilating remnants of the defeated Chinese army."

Two tremendous fires, apparently started in munitions storehouses, blotted the city out from the air under a blanket of smoke and shot flames hundreds of feet into the air.

Japanese asserted their armies were killing and scattering China's faltering defenders throughout the vital area along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad north of Suchow and the Lunghai railroad inland to the west. Suchow is the junction of the two lines.

The Suchow-Sutien highway, along the Grand Canal, was said by Japanese to be "jammed with Chinese slowly progressing amid a confusion of gun carriages, armored cars, trucks, horses and wagons."

"Over the ragged lines of men and guns moving toward an uncertain fate," the Japanese reported, "flew our airplanes, power-diving, bombing and machine-gunning incessantly and unopposed."

Suchow, 330 miles northwest of Shanghai, had been the goal of Japan's "grand campaign" in eastern China. Strategically, the city was more important to Japanese armies than fallen Nanking, once China's capital.

Links Provinces. Its occupation permits Japanese to link the conquered northern provinces with the Shanghai-Nanking area of the Yangtze river valley and control the Chinese seaboard from Manchoukuo to Hangchow Bay.

As the announcement was made, a Japanese military plane took off from Shanghai carrying the first foreign correspondents permitted behind Japanese lines since occupation of Shanghai November 9. The correspondents were to spend the night at Pengu and fly over the Suchow area tomorrow to inspect the battlefield, possibly landing at Lotoshan airfield outside the captured city.

Making the trip were Elmer W. Peterson, of Associated Press; S. S. Moore, of Reuters (British News Agency) and representatives of Domei (Japanese News Agency) and Le Journal De Shanghai.

Long Campaign. Since the fall of Nanking, December 13, Japanese columns suffered its most serious defeat of modern times at battered Taierchwang, when Chinese guerrilla attacks cut supply lines and regulars closed in on thinly held Japanese lines.

New troops and munitions were rushed to the front by the Japanese command, and the Rising Sun forces pushed steadily toward their goal. They had superiority in airplanes, tanks and artillery against China's advantage in manpower.

The Lunghai railway, which crosses the north-south Tientsin-Pukow line at Suchow, has carried Chinese troops and men to the central front.

Four-Phase Drive. Japanese pushed against Suchow from Tientsin-Pukow bases both north and south of the

$38,400 IS DIVIDED
IN PEEPLES' WILL

Remainder of Retired Banker's Estate Distributed to Brothers.

Bequests totaling $38,400, including four $1,000 gifts to institutions in the Atlanta area, are provided in the will of Thomas J. Peebles, retired banker who died May 7 after a long banking career in Atlanta.

On file for probate June 6 in Fulton Ordinary T. H. Jeffries' office, the will includes four $100 bequests to waiters at the Capital City Club, where Mr. Peebles had lived for the last 20 years.

The will directed that $1,000 be given to the Decatur Orphans' Home "as a memorial to my wife, Annie Wright Peebles." As a memorial to his mother, Mrs. Eliza Cabanis Peebles, a $1,000 sum was bequeathed to the Baptist Orphans' Home in Hapeville. Other bequests included $1,000 for the Scottish Rite Crippled Children's Home and a similar amount for St. Joseph's infirmary.

Bequests of $2,500 each were left to 10 nephews and nieces, while a $5,000 sum was left to Mrs. Willie Burke Van Winkle, "cousin and foster sister" of Mr. Peebles, the will stated.

After providing bequests of $1,000 and $500 for other relatives, the will directed that the remainder of the estate be divided equally between Mr. Peebles' two brothers, Howell Cobb Peebles and the late Edwin A. Peebles, who died about a month ago. The will was dated May 17, 1937.

Skeptics Laugh at Duke Savant
Who Uses Cards in Telepathy Test

Dr. J. B. Rhine Intrigues Students With New Game Involving Occult Powers—However, It's No Get-Rich-Quick Scheme, He Avers.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor. DURHAM, N. C., May 19.—A skeptical world is giving the same laugh it once handed Christopher Columbus to Dr. J. B. Rhine, Duke University psychologist, who says he has discovered telepathy and second sight.

As an explorer into the unknown, Dr. Rhine has to raise money for his expeditions, commonly known in science as investigations.

Recently he put on sale to the public a new kind of playing card, "E. S. P." decks. The initials mean extra sensory perception, his name for the mysterious sense he thinks he has found. The cards are used in his laboratory.

"Money-Making Scheme." When Dr. Rhine authorized public sale, skeptics exclaimed: "Now we are getting the truth. This is a money-making scheme."

But Dr. Rhine explains all the profits have been assigned to the William McDougall research fund, to help finance the experiments at Duke.

"The royalties," he says, "have not been sufficient to support a full-time investigator for one year. The rumors of fabulous royalties is, unfortunately, a myth."

"We feel that all of the rules and regulations on the liquor law are being met by most dealers, and all that should comply with them," Head said. "We are going to try to enforce every phase of the law."

Miss Clara Cole Weds Mr. Mallard At Afternoon Ceremony in Newnan

NEWNAN, Ga., May 19.—At a beautiful afternoon ceremony solemnized here at 5 o'clock today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bartow Cole, their only daughter, Miss Clara Frances Cole, became the bride of William Mallard, of New York, son of Mrs. James Mallard and the late Mr. Mallard, of New York and Atlanta.

Dr. L. Wilkie Collins, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Newnan, officiated at the ceremony which assembled a throng of close relatives and out-of-town guests. Miss Frances Coleman, organist of the First Methodist church, rendered a program of spiritual music.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of ferns and calla lilies, flanked by tall cathedral candelabra holding lighted tapers.

Lovely Bride Enters.
The lovely bride entered with her father, Frank B. Cole, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and John Knox, of Atlanta, who served as best man. She was beautifully gowned in a heavy white tulle gown, fashioned in princess style and featuring long sleeves and a heart-shaped neckline. Her white tulle veil was caught to her hair with a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white spray orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Frank Cole Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, was her only attendant. She was becomingly gowned in grey marquisette with dusky pink accessories, and a small hat of crushed pink roses with a grey veil. Her flowers were a bouquet of Queen Mary roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Cole, mother of the bride, wore black lace with a shoulder cluster of orchids. Mrs. James Mallard, mother of the groom, was gowned in a becoming costume of grey marquisette, and her flowers were orchids.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cole entertained at a reception at their residence. Beautiful floral decorations added to the attractiveness of the home, with Easter lilies and calla lilies predominating in the attractive arrangement. The bride's table was covered with a handsome lace cloth and outlined with fern and smilax. The bride's cake formed the central decoration and was surrounded by valley lilies. At either end of the table were white unshaded tapers in silver candelabra. Miss Fannie Cole Blackburn and Miss Corinne Cole, of Macon, kept the bride's book, and assisting in entertaining at the reception were the bride's cousins, who included Mrs. Raleigh Arnall, Mrs. Hanson Ford, Mrs. Hugh Farmer, Mrs. Glen Ware, Miss Emma North and Mrs. Parmalee Watkins, of Marietta, and Mrs. John Knox, of Atlanta.

Mr. Mallard and his bride left for New York city, from where they will sail on Saturday for a wedding trip to Bermuda. On their return they will reside at 105 East Fifty-third street, New York city.

Prominent Guests.
Out-of-town guests included the following from New York city: Colonel N. G. Boots, Dr. and Mrs. Stuart Craig, Ned E. Depinet, Merlyn H. Aylesworth, Bruce Bromley, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—In spite of all my fears, I had a very pleasant time at the American Booksellers' Association dinner, enjoyed my neighbor, Mr. Traver, retiring president of the association, and Mr. Cass Canfield, the president of Harper Brothers.

Somewhere around midnight I boarded one of those new, very modern trains. They have little compartments with a curtain which zips across the door and a bed which lets down out of the wall and hooks itself into place.

A friend came down with me, so we had a drawing room with more space than I have ever before encountered in one. Two very wide, comfortable beds and plenty of space in which to dress, make this a really luxurious way to travel. The porter's bell is a musical affair, the air-brakes made a curious sound which my friend insisted was a new way the porter had of waking up the travelers. At 6:15 the brakes were applied and she was all for dressing and being ready to leave the train at a time long before the scheduled hour of arrival.

Finally, we did get up and at 7:15 were ready to leave, but the train was standing still in the midst of a green countryside. I rang for the porter and was told that a car had broken down and we were some miles out of Baltimore and would be anywhere from an hour and a half to two hours late. We finally reached the Washington station at 8:30. My brother drove up with us and joined us at breakfast.

This being the day scheduled for the veterans' garden party, I was not at all surprised to find it raining. I cannot remember a year since we have been here when we have not worried about the weather. We have put off the party until tomorrow and may, if the weather reports are correct, have to put it off until next week!

Instead of a ride along the Potomac, I spent an hour with the dentist, caught up on mail, had a few friends lunch with me, and am trying to receive a number of people this afternoon whom I expected to see tomorrow.

A most interesting book has come to me. I have seen no reviews of it, but I cannot help feeling that it will be of great interest to many people. It is called "The Greatest Show on Earth," by Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Spencer. It is an awkward book to read because the pictures take up so much space and it therefore needs very large pages, but this history of the economic cycle showing "what forces have moulded and conditioned our lives" should be extremely interesting to anyone over 15 years of age.

I have also finished a novel by Wellington Roe, "Begin No Day." This is a story of a particular trade in a New England village with an interesting character study in the young hero. The difficulties of labor and management are truthfully pictured, as are the adjustment of purely economic problems. No conclusions are reached, but I think it is a book which will interest people who are concerned about similar problems and it certainly contains many suggestions which point the way to clearer thinking.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

The next time you go to the movies don't catch an inferiority complex from one of those glamour girls. If we pick her to pieces we may find that she has false eyelashes, false porcelain caps to perfect her teeth, false fingernails for beauty at her fingertips—and a sprinkling of gold dust to put lights in her hair! Such is the stuff that stars are made of.

What we are trying to tell you is that beauty gets a build-up. I do not want to belittle these beauty queens. They deserve extra credit for ingenuity and determination, for even the natural born beauty does not arrive in pictures without hard work.

The star in the making has plenty to do for herself. It is a luxury and a concession to good grooming to have your hair done regularly once a week. But when you have it done every single morning that you are working, it is an ordeal and a nuisance. Yet the star's long day begins with a date with the hairdresser. She must keep her weight down to streamline for the screen—which is 10 per cent harder than for you or me. Her figure must be perfect, which necessitates daily exercise. On top of all this, she probably takes lessons in diction, voice, dancing and perhaps a couple of foreign languages. And when she gets so tired she could scream, they call it a burst of temperament.

It's work all the time and no wonder the finished product is a delight to the eye. But unless you analyze these screen beauties you may be inclined to think they all had fairy godmothers around for the christening and that you didn't, and that's all there is to it. If you will only consider how the effects are achieved, you will realize that any girl who gives some serious consideration to her looks can be unusually attractive—if not a cool knockout.

To keep a perfect figure, the star must take daily exercise.

The fundamental rules are to eat sanely, to exercise like fury, to relax at frequent intervals but never, never to let down, to get eight hours sleep, to walk with the tummy pulled up and in, and to brush the hair until it gleams. If you are short, with a figure that threatens to become stocky, you must have daily twisting, stretching and bending exercises to keep the waist slim. You will roll and do high backward kicks to deal with a hip problem. You will hold your head so high that there is no chance for a double chin, and you will keep those tummy muscles firm no matter how much you have to exercise—and regardless of age, weight or position in society.

Perhaps you'd just as soon not be a glamour girl after all!

Beauty According To You

(Posed by Kay Francis.)

Summer Ensembles Can't Be Lovely When Skin Is Marred With Blackheads

By LILLIAN MAE.

Don't think that by spending dollars and dollars and hours and hours on assembling a summer wardrobe, you can be lovely, unless you turn some attention to clarifying and refining your complexion.

Nothing so spoils an otherwise lovely appearance as skin that is dotted with enlarged pores and those tiny specks known to us as blackheads. They can't be washed away, and the longer you allow them to stand, the blacker and more troublesome they tend to grow. And yet, the condition is far from hopeless. The first requisite in routing them is determination, the second, a good, reliable treatment, used regularly.

I've been using such a treatment for several weeks, and can tell you just how different my face feels as a result. It consists of a powder and a liquid, which must be mixed before being applied. Just put enough of the powder into one palm, and pour on of the liquid to make a paste not too thin, but sufficiently so to make it easy to use. Soon the skin begins to tingle a bit and seems to be actually breathing. Ah, the pores are working madly to throw out the black dots! After it has remained on for 10 to 20 minutes and is then loosened with the fingers and rubbed off with a dry towel or wash cloth, a transformation is immediately noticeable. Your skin is fresher, clearer, and the pores smaller.

Dry, sensitive skins require fewer applications, but oily complexions need more frequent ones. Not only does this remedy dislodge blackheads, but it normalizes coarse pores.

LET YOUR GARDEN DEVELOP YOUR PERSONALITY.

We're not sure but what this column today should come under the title of etiquette or maybe advice-to-the-lovelorn. Or even gardening. But here we are having our say about them all.

How does your garden grow? And who grows it? If you and your husband garden together and like it, you're lucky and needn't bother to read on.

A Competition of Errors. If you garden together and have a lot of trouble about who should have separate the tulips and didn't, or who planted the marigolds too thick, or who pruned the roses wrong or who put the lily of the valley bed in the wrong place—well, you'd better watch how you garden. The first thing you know, gardening won't be other pleasure for anybody; but just a competition of errors. You might try being gay and nonchalant about it and not minding if he does ruin the rhododendrons or discourage the iris. After all, you are gardening for fun, aren't you? Besides you've probably pulled a boner or two yourself.

If you both persist in being capricious, then you could divide up the yard and each reign supreme on his own side. But we don't think we'd like that so much. Or if you persist in telling each other how (to the aggravation point) one could retire from the field. Preferably the lady in the case, because if a man has an inclination to garden, he'd better be encouraged. And you will probably be allowed to go ahead as you please with the inside of the house, which is something. However, if he doesn't like to garden too much anyway and has just been doing it from duty, then give him a good porch rocker and let him retire behind pipe and paper. But both of you are going to miss a lot of good living.

An Experiment. Another way is to let your gardening activities be an experiment in personality. It might take a bit of doing to train yourself to be a tolerant jaunty soul, willing to concede your own mistakes and to be indulgent about his.

For when you're under 25, it's exciting and even fun to be belligerent and lay down the law to the world. But that gets to be a lot of wear and tear after a while. The older we get, the more important—and the harder—it is to treat other people with respect and consideration. That doesn't mean that we have to pussy-foot through the world. It just means that we have to learn the fine art of disagreeing without getting mean about it. And if you don't think that's worth the trouble learning, just take a look at the elderly people you know and decide which ones you'd like to emulate—the dictatorial tyrants or the mellowed adaptable people who can still adjust themselves to others. Because all the qualities we develop in middle life become exaggerated as we grow older. Which is something to stop us all in our tracks.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I'm 18, have finished school but am not employed. I've been going out with a boy who's a hard worker and a straight shooter. I had been meeting him around the corner and going to the movies with him but we decided it would be nicer to have home dates and so I asked my father if I might bring this boy to our living room. He replied that I would have to wait until I was 21 to have a date and that if he ever caught me dating this boy or any other, he would cut my face so no other boy would ever ask me for a date. Now what am I to do, sit at home every night and talk to Dad or meet the boy and run the risk of having my face cut up?

BETTY.

Answer: I think both you and the boy friend are straight shooters and have shown real character in the way you've approached your problem. Now don't spoil your record by defying your father even though he is unreasonable and unsympathetic. We think he's all wrong but we can't convince him that he's wrong; you will need expert assistance to bring him around.

Practically all of the social agencies are concentrating these days on family relationships and if you will call on a Family Service Association or a Child Hygiene Association, either they will send a social worker to talk things over with your father or direct you to some agency that specializes in problems such as yours. The advice and the assistance will be free for the asking.

In case you are timid about applying for this sort of aid, why not take your problem to your minister or priest. He will be glad to help to the extent of trying to show your father that he has a grand opportunity to be a family man, to be a father whose future depends upon his sympathetic friendship.

An 18-year-old girl shouldn't be expected to sit at home every night and talk to her dad and he shouldn't be thanking his lucky stars that she and the boy friend prefer to have their dates in the family living room. He should welcome the visitor and gladly stay at home to chaperon on date nights. But some dads just don't understand a young girl's natural desire to have boy friends and such dads make life very miserable for their daughters.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: The boy friend professes great love for me and swears he would like to marry me but cannot because he's on the spot. The spot being a widow to whom he feels family obligations. He says she's always been a family friend and if he fails to care for her, she expects him to, she rings up and gives him heck. What shall I say to him?

ANXIOUS.

Answer: Tell him that you hate to be taken for a fool; tell him that no family friend ever deterred a man from marrying.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

QUININE PROPHYLAXIS.

The chief malaria-carrying mosquito in the United States is the species called Anopheles quadrimaculatus, generally a pond fly. This mosquito may fly as far as a mile from its breeding place, even against the wind. It breeds preferably in stagnant salt water or fresh water in the open, where the eggs deposited on the surface of the water hatch into larvae or wigglers in a day or two. The larvae are air breathers and have to come to the surface every minute or two for air. After a week or so the larvae are transformed into pupae, which remains at the surface breathing through a pair of projecting trumpet-shaped tubes for three or four days until finally the winged insect (imago) emerges from the pupal case through a rent near the breathing tubes. The time from laying of the eggs on the surface of the water until the new generation of mosquitoes flies off averages ten days.

Neither the malarial mosquito nor any other species can breed in damp grass, weeds or bushes, as some people imagine, although the winged insects commonly rest and hide in the comparatively shady bushes or deep grass during the heat of the day.

All male mosquitoes are strict vegetarians. It is the females that crave blood, animal blood or human blood. The females must have blood for the full development of their eggs.

Ordinary mosquitoes of the common garden variety are a nuisance rather than anything that is dangerous. The malaria-carrying kind is readily distinguished from the ordinary harmless mosquito by the position in which the mosquito alights on the surface. The harmless mosquito sits or stands with its body parallel with the surface. The malaria-carrying mosquito sits or stands with its body nearly perpendicular to the surface.

It requires from 17 days to five weeks for the malarial plasmodium to complete its life cycle in the blood of the mosquito. Therefore the mosquito cannot inoculate a person through its bite until from 17 to 35 days after it has sucked malarial blood from a person who had the disease. But once infected the mosquito, which is not particularly harmed by the malarial parasite, may remain a carrier for a long time and inoculate a good many persons in the course of her career, before she succumbs to old age or a slap.

The incubation of malaria—the time elapsing from the moment of inoculation until the first symptoms develop—varies from ten days to as long as three months. So you had better keep right on taking your daily prophylactic dose of quinine for that long after you leave the malarial district where you have been visiting or staying for vacation.

Quinine prophylaxis is particularly important where screens and mosquito bars are not available, for travelers, automobile tourists, campers, marchers, hikers, workers.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 19.—(UP)—An air battle involving more than 100 planes was fought over the Mediterranean east coast of Spain today when a fleet of insurgent bombers raided the seaport of Castellon de la Plana, killing five children in a hospital and destroying 50 houses.

COURSE TO CHECK 'NOISY LIES' URGED

Rabbi Declares Propaganda Analysis Needed.

PITTSBURGH, May 19.—(AP)—Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, terming this an "age of propaganda," told the Association of Junior Leagues today he believed schools and clubs soon will offer courses in propaganda analysis.

Asserting that machine methods of broadcasting ideas were changing the world, the Pittsburgh rabbi said such courses were needed now. He added:

"It is possible for a dictator to dominate the avenues of adult education until every mind is moulded like clay in the obedient image he desires. The cultured mind of today must learn what a cultured mind in the past never needed to learn, how to distinguish truth from noisy, dominant lies."

VARGAS WOULD DIE TO STEM FASCISTS

No Quarter Promised for Those in Revolt.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 19.—(AP)—President Getulio Vargas declared today he preferred to be eliminated or smashed by inhuman ferocity rather than survive from his program of reconstruction for Brazil.

Addressing army leaders and military aviation students, Vargas described the frustrated Integralist (Fascist) revolt of May 11 as one of "criminal violence, murder and massacre."

The presidential address was made while police continued their round-up of suspects in the May 11 uprising.

Belmiro Valverde, leader of the revolt, told police he started planning the putsch two months ago.

Catholic Press Assails 'Filthy' Pictorial 'Mags'

NEW ORLEANS, May 19.—(AP)—The nation's Catholic press tonight assailed pictorial magazines may soon be given the same treatment accorded "dirty" movies.

The attack was launched in a prepared address by Vincent de Paul Fitzpatrick, president of the Catholic Press Association, at the annual meeting of the group here.

"The historians of the future," he said, "will doubtless agree that the greatest menace to the freedom of the press in the nineteenth century was the mercenary and degenerate publisher who attempted to win circulation and advertising by attempting to sear the hearts and minds of youth in the very sanctuary of the home."

"They will find that the parents of America served warning that if a publication could not respect the decency it would simply have to be crushed out of business, the crushing to be done to the pocket-books of the purveyors of printed and pictorial filth."

CURB ON FISHBEIN WRITINGS SOUGHT

Jersey Doctors Would Stop Syndicated Copy.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 19.—(AP)—The Medical Society of New Jersey resolved today to seek a curb on the writings of Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

With few dissenting votes the society voted to delegate to the American Medical Association's annual convention in San Francisco a month hence to attempt to confine Dr. Fishbein's writings to the Journal and stop the syndication of newspaper articles and publication of family medical books.

"The editor (Dr. Fishbein), is accepted and referred to by the press of the nation as the spokesman of organized medicine," the resolution reads. "He conducts a column in the daily press that does so to the detriment of the medical profession and the public health and has edited a 'Modern Home Medical Adviser,' the advertisements of which claim 'money could not buy any better health guidance.'"

The resolution said Dr. Fishbein had "admitted he has control over the advertising of this book."

It took less than an hour to complete another chapter in the wide-publicized case, originally involving nine negroes charged with attacking two white women aboard a freight train near Scottsboro, Ala., March 25, 1931.

O. K. Frankel, New York defense counsel, argued for new trials for Clarence Norris, 99 years, and Charlie Weems, 75 years.

Cut Now Would Not Bring New Business, Industry Believes.

By GEORGE T. HUGHES.

(Copyright, 1938.)

NEW YORK, May 19.—Doubtless the steel people know their own business better than any outsider, and certainly their judgment is entitled to respect, but the stock market did not regard as constructive the announcement that steel prices would be maintained for the third quarter at the present rates. Steel stocks were depressed, not stimulated, on the news.

The industry is said to believe that reductions at this time would not bring in any new business, but merely increase the present hesitation and uncertainty. Perhaps that is true in the durable goods trades, but it is not so with consumers' goods. The way the merchant moves goods is by cutting prices. The motor people know what to do when they have more cars than they can sell. Of course, the trouble with the steel industry is the same as with the railroads. Both are handicapped by rigid labor costs.

WAR HELD BARRING SOCIAL PROGRESS

LABOR OFFICE DIRECTOR WARNS OF COLLAPSE.

GENEVA, May 19.—(AP)—Harold D. Butler, director of the International Labor Office, tonight predicted early business recovery in the United States but warned that war is blocking world social progress and threatens to precipitate a "total collapse."

In his annual report, he reported unfavorably on basic economic conditions but declared "war is already invading the social field."

"It has already blocked some of the main avenues of advance," Butler reported, "and may soon begin to sap the social edifice which the generation has raised. Should another general war break out, a total collapse is practically certain."

PROFIT SHARING TAX REDUCTION IS URGED

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan, today called for legislation to authorize a committee to investigate systems of sharing profits between employers and labor would explore the possibilities of "incentive tax reductions."

Federal tax exemptions might be made of the dividends paid employees under a voluntary profit-sharing plan, he suggested in an interview. These exemptions, Vandenberg added, could be the government's contribution toward establishing a system which he said he believed would do much toward bringing industrial peace.

FLORIDIAN CONVICTED OF MURDERING WIFE

TAMPA, Fla., May 19.—(AP)—After deliberating 33 minutes, a circuit court jury tonight convicted Paul F. Bunge, 52-year-old poet, of first-degree murder of his wife, Mrs. Mary Larsen Bunge, here May 2. The jury did not recommend mercy, and under Florida law, a sentence of death in the electric chair is mandatory.

Although Bunge also was accused of the deaths of his two daughters, trial today was specifically on the slaying of his wife.

Sunkel Hurls Crackers to 4-to-0 Victory Over Little Rock

BREAK O' DAY!
By Ralph McGill

(Editor's note: Break O' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

It is, indeed, a strange world. Frank Werk was no great shakes of a pitcher as plain Frank Werk. He failed with Nashville; he failed with Atlanta. Today Frank Veverka is the leading pitcher of the Memphis Chicks. He has won five games and lost two.

VEVERKA.

Frank Werk is a changed man. He recently was married, culminating a romance that blossomed in a coffee shop at Savannah while the Crackers were in training and Frank Werk was struggling to make the grade in a dual role—as a left-handed pitcher and as a first baseman.

Along with his wife, Frank Werk changed his name. His real name was Veverka all along. He had been going under an assumed name and his pitching was just about the same.

There may be something in a name. But for the life of me, I cannot understand how changing the name of Werk to Veverka would make that much difference in a fellow's ability to curve a baseball.

When Werk signed on with the Chickasaws as Veverka, he said, "I have only two real ambitions: to beat Atlanta and Asheville."

To date he has realized both ambitions. He has beaten each team once. It's a bit hard to understand. As Werk, the Chicago youngster was a quiet, mild-mannered individual who confessed he did rather play first base than eat—I mean, pitch.

And as Veverka, they do say he is a curly wolf. It will be most interesting to follow the career of this Southern league Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

The romance angle may be the answer. When he left Savannah, he is said to have told the future Mrs. Werk, or Veverka, that "I will send for you as soon as I can get a good job."

He got the job. And Southern league batters are even now trying to figure out a way to get him. But they may as well concentrate on somebody else.

Things have worked out too well for Frank Werk. He didn't even return from Savannah with the Crackers. He went in the first cut. But he does return to Atlanta on Sunday—as the star pitcher of the Chickasaw staff.

If the sudden rise to fame of Veverka is not due to the

UMPIRE CHASES PAUL RICHARDS IN FIRST INNING

Silent Tom Allows Only 6 Safeties, While Atlanta Gets Eleven.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 19.—The Travelers were most unappetizingly cooled off twice tonight first by a five-minute shower in the third inning and second by Left-handed Tom Sunkel whose six-hit slinging gave the Atlanta Crackers a 4-to-0 victory. It was the second time the 1937 champions had been shut out this season.

Firing a fast ball in there from the outset, Sunkel had the Pebs popping like a popcorn factory in full blast. The Crackers made only three assists. Little Rock got a man past first base only two times. A man reached second in the first and another got to third in the fifth. Sunkel struck out six and walked two.

Meanwhile the Crackers cracked down on Kola Sharpe, who whipped them in the first game of a double-header here Sunday. Kola went out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh after being rapped for nine hits and three runs. Atlanta earned its other run off Wayman Kerkiseck.

RICHARDS CHASED. The banishing of Manager Paul Richards by Umpire Blackard in the first inning (while Claudius Bond gazed peacefully away), proved a break for the Crackers. Williams, who supplanted King Richards, went out and bagged himself three hits in four trips and proved a pain in the neck for the Pebs in general.

Mailho paced the Crackers' attack with four for five. The final game of the series will be played here tomorrow night. Harris will probably hurl for the Crackers with Bill Saylor, right-hander, or Garland Braton, a left-hander, for Little Rock.

The Crackers grabbed a one-run lead in the first inning and lost the services of Manager Richards in the last half of it. With one away, Mailho tripled to left and scored on Chatham's infield out. Rose was an infield kill.

Graham opened with a single. Snyder popped to Sunkel and Nagel went down swinging. Then came the verbal fireworks as Deal was given first when Umpire Blackard claimed that a pitch struck Lindsey on the hand. Richards declared otherwise, meaning the ball hit the bat, and the music went around.

OUTTID BOILY. Paul outdid Boily Grimes in blaspheming a man in black and white. He pushed Blackard not too gently, kicked dirt on his vanilla pants and climaxed it all by flipping his guards in the air as he was chased. Then Lipscomb lifted for the third out.

Atlanta made another run in the second as Hill opened with a single to center. Peters popped but Williams, who replaced Pilot Paul in the lineup, singled to center, sending Hill to third. Bolling was intentionally passed filling the bases. Hill scored as Sunkel grounded out to Campbell, and Sharpe threw out Mauldin.

The Richardsless ones threatened in the third. Mailho singled off Sharpe's knee and Chatham sacrificed. Rose fouled to Lipscomb and Hill was passed purposely. Peters forced Hill.

The umpires halted the game while the Travelers were at bat as it began raining. It was resumed after several minutes with Sunkel continuing to hold the Travelers at bay.

OPENS WITH SINGLE. Williams opened the fourth with a single and Bolling sacrificed, but Sunkel grounded out and Mauldin fouled out.

Rose doubled to right center after two were away in the fifth. Sharpe again passed Hill intentionally. It was Kola's third walk of the game, all being ordered. The strategy worked, too, as Peters hit a No. 4 iron to Deal.

Little Rock got a man as far as third. Coble walked and Sharpe popped to Bolling. After Graham flied out, Snyder singled sending Coble to third but Nagel flied out. That Sunkel had the Travelers popping is verified by the fact that the Crackers had yet to be charged with an assist through the fifth frame.

It was 3 to 0, Atlanta in the sixth. Williams tripled to left and scored on Bolling's single. Sunkel forced Bolling and Mauldin lined to Lipscomb, who doubled Sunkel off first.

When Hill threw out Lipscomb

GEORGIA TECH'S HOPE FOR TWO FIRST PLACES IN S. E. C. MEET

Charlie Belcher, Georgia Tech's crack low hurdler and quarter-mile runner, is the school's chief hope for two first places in the Southeastern conference meet at Birmingham. They figure Chick Aldridge for a first in the two-mile and Charlie Staples for a first in the 220-yard dash if a pulled muscle comes around. The Jackets hope to finish third.

Perry Beats Vines In Straight Sets

Walt Senior Downs Berkeley Bell, 6-2, 6-2; Vines and Bell Are Doubles Winners.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Fred Perry, the bashful Briton, gained revenge for his defeat at the hands of Ellsworth Vines Wednesday by trouncing the tall Californian, 6-2, 7-5, in their final match last night on the Northside Tennis Club courts.

Berkley Bell, former national intercollegiate champ, continued his comedy of errors and lost his second successive battle to Walter Senior, Canadian titleholder, 6-2, 6-2, in the night's opener.

Again the losers teamed to defeat the winners as Vines and Bell whipped Senior and Perry, 6-1, 6-4, in the doubles finals.

FEW POINTS. The feature match was a brilliantly played affair with comparatively few points made by either contestant. Indeed, in the first set, not a deuce game was recorded by Umpire Bitsy Grant, Atlanta Atom of the amateur courts.

And not until the seventh game of the second set did the score of any game become tied at three points each. There were two deuce games in the entire match.

Point statistics may be interesting. In the first set Perry took 29 points and Vines 20. In the final, the score was 37 to 31 in favor of the Englishman.

It was a story entirely different from the first Atlanta match between the two stars of the professional ranks.

Perry seemed to solve the tall Californian's smashing net game and terrific service with ease last night and made startling recoveries for points.

Ellsworth started off like the proverbial house afire by taking the first two games. It was exactly opposite in their first encounter, Perry taking the first set.

SETTLES DOWN. However, after dropping the first couple of games, the Englishman settled down to take the next two and deuce the set.

Vines held his service in the ninth game to win his last of the set as Perry ran it out 6-3. He took the final game—on Vines' service—at love.

The second set was played evenly, with each player holding his serve until Vines broke through in the seventh game to lead, 4-3. However, the black-headed Briton returned the compliment to win the next game on Vines' service and deuce the set, 4-4.

Each held his service during the next three games but Perry, playing brilliantly, broke through on the 12th and won the match, 7-5.

With Vines serving, Perry was at match point twice before he could end the battle.

The doubles affair proved exciting and kept the large crowd

GIANTS BEATEN BY BRUINS, 1 TO 0, IN TENTH INNING

Lee Gives Giants Five Hits; Mize Homers, But Cards Lose.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The Boston Bees jumped into third place in the National league by sweeping their three-game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, in 11 innings yesterday. It was their fifth straight victory.

The Chicago Cubs took advantage of Harry Gumbert's momentary wildness in the tenth inning to shove a run across and defeat the Giants, 1 to 0, in a tight pitching duel. Bill Lee limited the Giants to five hits.

The Dodgers scored seven runs in the seventh and eighth innings to come from behind and whip the St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 4. Johnny Mize hit a homer for the Cards and Frie Koy clouted one for the Brooklyn with two aboard.

A run in the ninth inning gave the Phillies a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Hugh Mulcahy, who held the Reds to five hits, came in with the winning run when Linny Frey let a ball thrown from the outfield get away from him and roll into the dugout.

COLLINS MEETS DUGAN TONIGHT

Fans attending the wrestling bouts at the Northside Tennis Club stadium, on Juniper street, between North avenue and Ponce de Leon avenue, Friday night, will see a free-for-all fight during the wrestling show between Wild Bill Collins and Red Dugan, the Chattanooga terror.

The grapplers have been enemies for the past few years. Collins returned here a few weeks ago after several months stay in Boston and New York, while Dugan has been on a tour of Mexico and Texas. The bout between these two local boys should settle the question as to the best matman.

Honey Boy Hackney, the Texas hook scissor king, meets Eddie Pope, the Carolina plowboy, in a return engagement. Pope was injured last week during the second fall of a scientific match against Hackney and asked for a return bout.

Whiskers Brown, the rough Canadian, will tangle with Young Gotch, the former Miami star, in the opening match.

Today's event was originally scheduled for earlier in the month but was postponed due to other tournaments in progress at that time.

Kirby, A. W. G. A. Honor Guests

The driving will start at 8 o'clock and Walter Baker, manager of the club, will be the host.

College Park Club Re-elects Officers

M. C. Bishop, president; W. C. Cowart, vice president, and T. A. Stephenson, secretary-treasurer, were re-elected to lead the College Park Municipal Golf Association through another year.

The club voted unanimously to become affiliated with the newly organized Atlanta Municipal Golf Association and has already made plans to have representation at the tournament to determine a city representative at the national public links tournament at Cleveland in August.

Buddy Phillips and Stafford Wallace have been named team captains for a membership drive.

JOHN WHITEHEAD BLANKS RED SOX ON 3 HITS, 4 TO 0

York, Greenberg Homers Aid Tigers' 6-2 Victory Over A's.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The Cleveland Indians landed on two Washington pitchers for 13 hits, including three homers, a triple and four doubles to win the first game of their series, 15 to 8, yesterday. Averill, Keltner and Heath hit home runs for the Indians and Simmons contributed one for the Senators. The victory put the Indians in first place by a game.

The Boston Red Sox were dropped from the lead and their winning streak stopped at eight games when Johnny Whitehead, big Chicago White Sox right-hander, making his first start in 25 days, shut them out with three singles to win, 4 to 0. The game was called at the end of the seventh because of rain.

The Detroit Tigers won the opener of a series with Philadelphia here, 6 to 2, behind the six-hit pitching of George Gill, Rudy York and Hank Greenberg, of Detroit, hit home runs, each with a mate on base.

The Yanks and Browns were rained out.

ONE SHOE OFF

By Joseph McCord.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Clayton Odell, a stranger in Norwood, is taking a sun bath in a canoe on a near-by lake one Saturday afternoon in July when the craft is jolted violently. A second later, a yellow bathing cap rises over the side of the canoe and a girl, short of breath, apologizes for the intrusion. "May I hang on here just a minute, please?" she asks. He invites her to climb aboard, which she does with alacrity. She is obviously relieved by this chance to rest after a long swim. In reply to Clayton's genial utterances, she says she went out swimming with several girls from the office where she works, and was trying to swim against the current. But her endurance was not equal to her ambitions. The canoe was her only refuge. Clayton and the girl take a liking to each other instantly. After a lively conversation, she, responding to a question from Clayton, tells him her name is Hillary Layne, and that she works in the office of the shrewish mill owner by Romulus Wardlaw, whom she describes as "sort of shriveled up and grouchy." Her inexact knowledge of shorthand had tricked him when she once substituted for his secretary. She also complains about the poor pay all the employees receive. Clayton gives her his name, but otherwise does not identify himself. Arriving home, Hillary is dismayed when her mother tells her that her name is Hillary Layne, the nephew, named Odell, had come to live with him and would be staying in the mill. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.

"No thank you." He regarded her thoughtfully. "Miss Kime—". "Call me Annie. I don't mind." "I will." Odell promptly, flashing her one of his genial smiles. "And I'm Clay—". "To my old friends, I'm sure I remember seeing you when I was a very small boy. My father brought me here." "Yes. He did. That was soon after you lost your mother." "I know. Father never would say what he and Uncle Romulus fell out over. I suppose it wouldn't be sporting to ask if you know." Annie's mouth tightened grimly. "Those two men never did get on together like they should, marrying sisters and all. I don't think they ever saw each other after the time you're talkin' about. That was years before Mrs. Wardlaw died." "I know they didn't. I had very nearly forgotten I had an uncle, until he hunted me up. I don't know yet how he located me. But here I am." "He's smart," Annie contributed. "Plenty smart." She picked up a handful of dishes and departed for her kitchen, while Clayton rose from his chair with a rueful face and prepared to attend the conference in the library. "I wonder if I've been smart," he muttered half-aloud. There was nothing reassuring in the sharp glance Romulus bestowed upon him when he entered the library. The old man laid the book he had been reading face-up on the table and deposited his spectacles on the open pages. "Sit down," he ordered, indicating a nearby chair. He leaned back and assumed his familiar pose, the tips of his fingers pressed tightly together. "I hadn't taken you into the mill before for two reasons, Clayton," he began in a harsh dry voice. "I wanted to give you a general setup of the business first—". "So you'd know what it was all about, before you started looking around and getting under foot. And I wanted to get things lined up before the office force knew of our arrangement. I think we've covered the story pretty well." Odell nodded without committing himself. He had heard all this. "I understand from your employers," Romulus continued, "that you were something of an expert on costs and production. That's what I want you to turn your attention to. I think you'll find our costs are as low as anybody's—". "Lower maybe. But I'm not too old a dog to learn new tricks, if they'll do me any good. Bear in mind, though, I don't want any folderols that will take a bunch of new clerks to keep going. The way business is, costs have got to go down. Not up, mind you. I'm willing to see what you can do. If you make good, you won't regret it. I expect to be around here for a long time yet, but I'm not so young as I once was. I built my mill from the ground up and I want to see it go on after I'm finished. Blood's thicker than water. If you can make the grade, I'd rather see you carry on than some outsider."

It was a long speech for Romulus. The last words were pitched to a high key. His nephew nodded again without speaking. There was something like a glint of amusement in his eyes, which his relative must have detected. "But hark ye, young man!" he cautioned sharply. "Don't get an idea that you won't have to toe the mark, same as everybody else that works for me. Do things my way, and it will pay you pretty handsomely some day. If you don't—". "I can still manage the business, same as I do right now. That's clear, is it?" "Still clear." The two words were spoken gently, but a distinct edge was apparent in Odell's tone. "After all, Uncle, there is nothing like getting off on the right foot. For both of us, that is." "What d'ye mean by that, sir?" "Just this. I had a good position and good prospects when you took the trouble—". "I mean when you were kind enough to hunt me up. I happen to know that you looked me up pretty thoroughly." "Well, and why not?" "It was the perfectly logical thing to do. For the same reason that I secured a report on the Norwood Mills before we came to an understanding and signed. But I have signed it and I intend to go through with all its provisions to the best of my ability." "And just why are you explaining all this?" was the testy question he received in reply. "Perhaps for no good reason, Uncle Romulus. Unless it is that your attitude persists in suggesting that I am totally inexperienced and in need of discipline. I'll admit that I know very little about your manufacture details. On the other hand, I feel perfectly qualified by my business education and training to handle any reasonable problems that are likely to crop up in a plant as small and compact as yours appears to be. I intend to devote my best efforts and my time to the job. On the other hand, I expect to take the recreation I'm accustomed to and live normally. I thought I'd better mention that before we go further. Those night sessions we've been holding in here have given me the impression that 18 hours a day is about what you consider fair."

"Why, sir? why, you—". "I never tolerate effrontery from any employee, high or low. I don't propose to begin with you, Clayton. Perhaps I have made a mistake, after all." "Oh, no, Uncle Romulus. You haven't," the young man assured him cheerfully. "That agreement says that either one of us is at liberty to cancel it on 30 days' notice. Right?" "Yes. But—". "I'll take care of that, if you like," Clayton interrupted amiably. "We'll play I gave you notice 30 days ago today. No ill feelings. How's that?" Romulus stared for an instant, blinking rapidly. "Come, come!" he snapped. "We shall get on well enough, I dare say. After dinner, we'll go down and look around the plant. I must be starting for church. You'd better join me."

Sunday proved a long day for Hillary Layne, although she was thankful enough for a brief respite before what promised to be a still more unpleasant Monday. Her chief reaction to the canoe episode was hot resentment, rather than even divided between herself and Clayton Odell. Why had she been dumb enough to let him draw her out that way? She had only herself to blame for that. But that man had no earthly business to do the thing he had done! A fresh wave of indignation swept over her every time she recalled that humorous light in his eyes. It was the most attractive thing about him, that and the droll way he said things.

But all the time he had been laughing to himself. At her! That was the humiliating part. All the time thinking she was a little simp. It wouldn't be at all surprising if he had gone and related it all to Mr. Wardlaw—good joke.

A man who would stoop to a trick like that wouldn't stop at anything. Romulus wouldn't see anything funny about it and she was far from being in his good graces, now. She almost wished he had fired her on account of that wretched letter.

If Mr. Odell had been staying at Romulus's house, it was odd that the word hadn't gotten around sooner. Private lives had little chance in Norwood. Mrs. Cates must have learned the news from Mrs. Kime. The two were rather intimate. Little chance that the news would prove untrue.

When Hillary went downstairs to a late breakfast, she fancied somehow that the town would wear a different air, an atmosphere of expectancy. Or something. But Norwood, or that part of it visible from the front porch, seemed wrapped up in its customary Sabbath calm. Even Mrs. Layne was not sufficiently impressed by the news to refer to it again. She must have told all she knew in the first place. And, besides, she was giving most of her attention to Muriel who still wore the sad, abstracted air her younger sister had predicted.

over the faces and bodies of the warriors, and they put pieces of fern in their hair before they go forth to fight.

A war may be caused by the stealing of pigs, or canoes, by persons living in the same village. It may also follow a "curse" placed on a chief by a wizard.

One contest between two villages is known as the "War of the Areca Nut." A man from the place called Saa gave an areca nut (probably poisoned) to the chief of Fagani. The chief chewed it, and died soon afterward.

As the man from Saa went homeward in a canoe with some friends, he was chased by warriors from Fagani. Two of those in the Saa canoe were killed. A dozen more lives were lost in fighting during later weeks. Then the quarrel was patched up. The daughter of a chief on one side was married to a chief on the other side, and everyone seemed friendly again.

Battles in Solomon island wars have not been very bloody as a rule. Spears are hurled, and arrows are shot, but when one side shouts, "We've had enough!" the fighting ends.

Dancing and feasting take place in a village which wins a battle. Music is supplied from conch shells, flutes, gongs and rattles. There is also a good deal of singing.

Victory dance of Solomon Island warriors.

Certain old war customs of the natives are amusing. When a war is about to start they kill a pig and place it on an altar where it is burned. This is a sacrifice to the "ghost of war," made with the hope that it will bring them victory.

The warriors hold the tips of their spears in the smoke coming from the burning pig. They believe this makes the spears more deadly.

DEEN TO RUN AGAIN FOR SEAT IN HOUSE

Congressman Makes Known
His Candidacy for Re-election.

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 19.—(P)—Representative Braswell Deen, of the eighth Georgia district, today formally announced his candidacy for re-election in a telegram to the Democratic district executive committee.

Deen, who recently resumed his seat in congress after a long illness, promised a "vigorous and determined" campaign in event of opposition.

Ben T. Gibbs, of Jesup, solicitor of the Brunswick county circuit, has been mentioned as a possible opponent. He ran against Deen four years ago and lost by only 50 votes. At Brunswick, Gibbs said he had not decided whether to run.

The executive committee set June 1 as the qualifying deadline in the congressional race, and decided the election should be on a basis of popular vote. The committee also adopted a resolution congratulating Deen on recovering his health.

Other political developments of the day included:

ALBANY: Adie N. Durden, Dougherty county representative, announced he will be a candidate for the state senate from the 10th district. The district includes Dougherty, Lee and Worth counties.

VIENNA: Mayor E. H. Conner, of Unadilla, announced as a candidate for representative from Dooly county in the state legislature, to succeed V. C. Daves, of Vienna, who has announced for the senate from the 14th district.

VALDOSTA: Judge W. E. Thomas has remitted his entrance fee as a candidate to succeed himself as judge of the southern judicial circuit court.

DONALSONVILLE: Chairman Joe Johnson Jr., of the Seminole county Democratic executive committee, said Representative John E. Drake will be re-elected without opposition for re-election.

CARTERSVILLE: Four candidates have announced their intention to seek election for Bartow county's two seats in the house of representatives. They are Rufus V. Jones, Cartersville attorney, incumbent, who seeks re-election; M. L. Johnson, who has served several terms in house and senate; E. J. Summerour, Cartersville lawyer, and Percy A. Bray, also of Cartersville. Jones also announced his intention to seek the house office of speaker pro tem, should he be re-elected.

10TH DISTRICT VOTE IN ALL COUNTIES URGED
DUBLIN, Ga., May 19.—(P)—The county Democratic committee here has asked that each county in the 10th senatorial district vote on the state ballot in future instead of confining the vote to the county under the rotation system.

The action grew out of Treutlen county's waiving of its right in favor of Emanuel county, where John B. Spivey is seeking re-election.

ENTRY DEADLINE SET
FOUR DAYS LATER
MARIETTA, Ga., May 19.—(P)—Possibility of a clash between the state Democratic committee and the Cobb committee loomed this afternoon, when it was discovered the county committee has set closing dates for entries in the general assembly races four days later than the state deadline of June 1.

State primary rules stipulate that no names of candidates will be placed on the official ballot unless they are qualified by noon, June 1.

The 39th senatorial district executive committee, in a meeting last Saturday at Douglasville, also set June 4 as the entry deadline for senatorial candidates in this district.

10-DAY MOTOR STRIKE
IN MEXICO CITY ENDS
MEXICO CITY, May 19.—(UP)—The 10-day strike at the Ford Motor Company's assembly plant here involving 350 full-time and 200 part-time workers, ended today when the Federal Labor Board ruled the walkout was illegal.

The men quit work May 9 after the company had rejected demands for a collective contract, including union recognition and wage agreements.

A Bad Day for Percival

James Percival, 24, a trusty at Fulton tower escaped late yesterday afternoon, but was captured within 10 minutes.

He is serving three years on a burglary conviction.

Percival climbed a 12-foot wall in making his getaway. Prison attaches and city policemen saw him leap from the wall and gave chase. He was captured in the rear of a cotton and bag mill at 170 Boulevard, S. E.

After his return to the tower, Percival made another break for freedom, but became wedged in a narrow space. Grease was used by prison guards to extricate him. He was placed in irons in a bare cell.

HIGHER PRICE IS PAID FOR RED BIRD PEACHES

MACON, Ga., May 19.—(P)—Red Birds—the first early Georgia peaches with high color—showed up in the New York market today, and immediately there was a jump in price.

The Red Birds, grown near Haddock, in Jones county, were packed in half-bushel baskets and measured two inches in diameter. They brought $1.75 a basket, according to private advices to growers here. This is the best price paid since the first shipment.

Not many Red Birds are in sight for this season, but right behind them will come the Early Rose, also a highly colored fruit and always in good demand because of its color. The first car of Early Rose is due to leave middle Georgia Saturday.

STUDENT FAINTS.
AMERICUS, Ga., May 19.—(P)—With the temperature going to 94, the hottest this year, Russell Holloway, senior at Anthony High school, fainted today, apparently due to heat, and was sent to a hospital. He was reported resting well an hour later.

SAVANNAHAN JAILED
IN AUTO DEATH OF BOY
DUBLIN, Ga., May 19.—(P)—Sheriff I. F. Coleman said today he was holding J. A. Cross, of Savannah, on a murder warrant sworn out by W. P. Patterson, grandfather of Edgar Ruell Bellamy, 13, who was killed near here May 6 when struck by Cross' automobile.

Sheriff Coleman said an investigation he made indicated the accident was "unavoidable." The boy, riding a bicycle, apparently swerving in front of the car as it undertook to go around him on the Macon highway near Montrose. Cross was allowed to proceed to Decatur, Ala., agreeing to return when wanted. He was advised of the warrant in Savannah late yesterday, and returned here with a Laurens county deputy sheriff.

TVA HOSPITAL SICK
SAVED FROM BLAZE
HUNTSVILLE, Ala., May 19.—(P)—Eight patients of the TVA Guntersville Dam hospital were taken to safety today as fire threatened to destroy the building.

A fire department maintained by TVA at the dam responded quickly and soon extinguished the flames. The fire apparently originated in the hospital kitchen.

EVERETT ELECTED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Atlanta Attorney Is New Assembly Moderator; Active in Work 35 Years.

Willis M. Everett, attorney of Atlanta, was elected moderator of the 78th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States at its opening session at Meridian, Miss., last night.

Everett succeeds Dr. D. Clay Lilly, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who was unable to attend the 1938 assembly because of illness.

He has been superintendent of the First Presbyterian church Sunday school in Atlanta for a quarter of a century.

Election of the moderator, highest office in the assembly, followed a sermon by Dr. Charles E. Diehl, president of Southwestern University Memphis, Tenn.

Elder Everett was chosen moderator over Dr. Albert Sidney Johnson, Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. R. C. Anderson, Montreat, N. C.; Dr. Diehl, John W. Friend, Petersburg, Va., and Rev. E. T. Wellford, New Port News, Va.

U. S. ORDER CURBS
MELON SHIPMENT

None Below No. 1 May Move From May 20 to June 26.

ALBANY, Ga., May 19.—(P)—Shipping regulations for watermelon growers in the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida have been fixed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Thad Huckabee, manager of the watermelon control committee, said he has received from Wallace the following telegram:

"From 12:01 a. m. May 20 to 12:01 June 26, 1938, no handler shall ship watermelons lower than United States No. 1 grade from points within the southeastern states to any markets outside such states."

Huckabee said at the end of the period the committee could request an additional order permitting the shipment of watermelons lower than United States No. 1 grade for the rest of the season.

He added, however, the committee meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., May 14, asked Wallace to issue an order eliminating all grades of watermelons, other than United States No. 1 for the entire 1938 season.
